NEW REGIME IS ALERT TO RADIO NEEDS

VOIDS ONE-MAN RULE

Hoover Believes Board Should Iron Out Many of Present Difficulties

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Night, 1929 by Post Pub. Co.

It is the tenth of a series of dispatches, David Lawrence lists an outline of the policy of the Hoover administration concerning radio and communications. In handling dispatches he will discuss other topics, sketching the line of action in the new administration.

Washington —(AP)—Herbert Hoover grew up with radio. Long before any public official even bought a receiving set, Mr. Hoover was studying the problem of radio communication. Virtually all the interests of radio, the manufacturer of sets, the broadcasting station manager, the large organizations of listeners and the engineers who have looked forward from year to year to greater accomplishments, have found in Mr. Hoover a sympathetic and alert mind.

Himself an engineer, Mr. Hoover has followed the technical difficulties of the radio industry with unusual comprehension. His statements of what public policy should be on radio have been the basis for the present development and there would have been far less confusion today if some of the members of congress had not begun to suspect Mr. Hoover of trying to dominate the ether for political purposes. They could not foresee that the broadcast companies themselves would take care of political freedom on the air and that political parties would necessarily protect their own interests by buying space.

They thought that Mr. Hoover would be shortsighted and attempt to use his power for politics. This was their conception of the use of federal machinery and they considered that to put the whole radio business in the hands of one man was to set up a bureaucracy which could control the number of stations and decide which ones should have broadcasting power.

HAS HIS HANDS FULL
The setting up of a radio commission to function as an administrative body was a compromise between the Hoover view and the political view. Now, however, Mr. Hoover is on top and much to the surprise of the politicians themselves he is adverse to taking over the whole radio tangle. He said so before, but the politicians were skeptical. This is Mr. Hoover's view:

"I have said consistently for the last four or five years that the location of stations and the allocation of wave lengths should not be in congressional hands."

NEW COLD WAVE STRIKES AUSTRIA AND BALKANS

London —(AP)—Renewed cold in Austria, Hungary and the Balkans intensified suffering there Friday. More moderate weather prevailed in Greece and parts of Turkey.

There were new stories of the hardship and misery wrought by the storm. One came from Travnik, Bosnia, where two tiny goatherds, brother and sister, were found frozen to death, clasper in each other's arms. Surrounding them were 80 dead goats they had tried to lead out of the storm. Some of the drifts near them were 21 feet deep.

Severe conditions continued in northern Europe with the Baltic sea and its entrances still frozen tight. Intense cold was still reported from Poland where it has caused trade stagnation. Textile mills at Lodz were shut down, unable to operate.

Temperatures below freezing were recorded in almost every section of France.

5-Year Booze Penalty Up To Cal

JONES BILL IS APPROVED BY HOUSE, 183-90

Provides 5 Year Maximum Penalty for First Violation of Law

Washington —(AP)—Approved by both houses, the Jones bill Friday needed only the president's signature to become law. The measure was passed by the House Thursday by the one-sided vote of 183 to 90.

The bill provides a maximum penalty for a first violation of the prohibition laws five years in prison, or a fine of $10,000, or both. Discretionary power is given federal judges to discriminate between minor and major offenders.

Introduced by Senator Jones, Republican, of Washington, the measure was probably the only one considered during the session in which the issue between the vets and drys was well defined. A few drys were against it because they thought the law too stringent, but very few as the votes showed. While it was in the senate it precipitated a debate between Reed of Missouri, and Borah of Idaho, but all the Missourians' eloquence did not keep the bill from passing the senate by almost as large a margin, comparatively speaking, as it did the house.

ATTACK ON HYPER
During the debate on the bill in the house, F. Scott McBride, General superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, sat in one section of the gallery, while in another section were representatives of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment. Dr. McBride's presence was noted by Representative O'Connor, Democrat, New York, in an attack upon the bill. Representing O'Connor intimated that the advocates of the Jones measure were not supporting the constitution but were passing the bill because of the "Anti-Saloon league, whose leader and whose dictator sits there in the corner watching your every move and who is sending messages down here somewhere."

"He sits up there, Dr. McBride, the super president of the United States," O'Connor continued. "Many of you know he is there. That is the constitution and that is the amendment you are supporting and not the eighteenth amendment."

Representative Moore, Republican, Ohio, attacked O'Connor because the New York member had declared in a speech on Wednesday that he despised and abhorred the eighteenth amendment and would not vote for any measure to enforce it.

During the discussion in the house a compromise between the Jones measure and an amendment, proposed by Representative Tucker, Democrat, Virginia, to discriminate between the first offenders and the habitual violators of the dry laws was adopted by a standing vote, but when the amendment was submitted to a roll call it was defeated.

Wisconsin congressmen voting for the Jones measure were: Comer, Campbell and Nelson. Against were Kading, Lampert, Peacey, Schafer and Schneider. Absent were Berger and Beck.

FLOOD RELIEF SEEN FOR SOUTHERN REGION
Atlanta, Ga. —(AP)—Clearing skies and a drop in temperature Friday brought hope for the southern states menaced by floods which had claimed eight lives.

Forty-eight hours of rain had caused streams to overflow in Georgia and southern Alabama, but Friday only residents living in low-lying areas were apprehensive, as the flood had reached its crest in the headwaters.

In North and South Carolina similar conditions prevailed. Flood waters carried away bridges and washed out roads.

Hundreds of lowland dwellers in the four states have been routed from their homes. Towns and villages were isolated by the waters that cut off highway and rail communication.

Millidgeville, Ga., a city of 10,000, was isolated as waters of the Oconee spread over highways, and bridges on all main roads into town were washed away.

KOHLER OFF TO ATTEND HOOVER INAUGURATION

Madison —(AP)—Gov. Walter J. Kohler left here Friday for Washington where he will see Herbert Hoover inaugurated as president of the United States. Governor Kohler will spend Saturday and Sunday in New York, and will go to the national capital Monday.

TROTZKY IS REPORTED IN SERIOUS CONDITION

Constantinople —(AP)—A report worthy of credence Friday said that Leon Trotsky was so seriously ill that local soviet doctors are unable to treat him and a specialist from Berlin, named Klemperer, has been called here to attend him.

Hoover Finishes Work, Rests Before Inaugural

Washington —(AP)—All of his pressing problems solved, President-Elect Hoover Friday calmly awaited the arrival of the day now but three removed when he will take over the administration of government in the midst of pageantry such as Washington has not known in many years.

He is not completely inactive but with the strain of final decisions on cabinet posts ended and other questions put aside until after inauguration, Mr. Hoover was able to relax and to move more leisurely in conferences and with the work at hand.

Friends of the president-elect said he had reached no decisions regarding selection of successors to assistant secretaries in the various departments who soon are to leave the government service to reenter business fields. It was indicated that he would make no appointments until he had conferred with the men he has selected to administer the affairs of the several departments.

It also was stated that he would follow the same rule with respect to diplomatic appointments and since Henry L. Stimson, who is to be secretary of state, will not reach Washington until April 1, it was assumed that changes in the diplomatic corps would be made after that time. With eight cabinet selections regarded as fixtures, speculation still went merrily on Friday on the promised "surprise" appointments to the agriculture and commerce posts. Admittedly the guessers were making little headway as they found themselves rather seriously handicapped by the statement that the men chosen have not even been mentioned in connection with the posts, in any of the conjecture down to date.

The president-elect had hoped to keep all of his appointments secret until he sent the nominations to the senate Monday, but he will be well satisfied if he is able to keep that of the newspapers until that time the names of the new secretaries of agriculture and commerce.

THIS INSTRUMENT MEASURES BLUSH OF CHORUS GIRL

New York —(AP)—An instrument so sensitive it can measure the blush of a Broadway chorus girl is one of the achievements of science during the last year.

In one of a series of demonstrations arranged by the American institute, Miss Joanna Allen of a musical show sat before a device resembling a small automobile horn and blushed. Dr. E. E. Free, recorded the blush at five one-hundredths of a degree, Fahrenheit.

The measurement is made by noting the amount of heat radiated from the cheeks when emotion sends the blood rushing into them.

Miss Allen's blush was classified as "the eighth" one, scarcely sufficient to deepen the color of the cheeks. Dr. Free said in a series of tests a wide range of temperature changes had been noted in blushing, some readings showing 100 times as much actual rise in temperature as others.

The blushing of blondes, he said, were hotter than those of brunets.

MAY COMPROMISE ON DRY FUND BILL

Senate Group Offers to Accept a $3,000,000 Increase on Measure

Washington —(AP)—A compromise between the senate and house on an increase in prohibition funds was in prospect Friday as senate conferees in the dispute offered to accept a $3,000,000 increase in place of the $24,000,000 previously voted. The house has proposed an increase in dry funds of $2,724,000.

The $3,000,000 compromise was proposed at a conference on the two deficiency appropriation bills with the consent of Senator Harris, Democrat, Georgia, the author of the $24,000,000 dry fund provision.

Another conference was called for later in the day and meanwhile the house spokesmen returned to their chamber to sound out sentiment there on the proposition.

After Senator Harris had won his fight for $24,000,000 in the senate, the first deficiency bill in which it was incorporated was abandoned. President Coolidge then recommended an increase of $2,724,000. The house accepted this and incorporated it in the second deficiency measure.

Both bills are now in conference between the senate and house. They carry more than $215,000,000 for a variety of federal projects throughout the country.

CLAIRVOYANT FACING ANOTHER FRAUD COUNT

Pocatello, Idaho —(AP)—A. B. Stevens, known also as A. B. Meyer, who was recently convicted here on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses from Mrs. Agnes Schwabe of McCammon, was on trial in district court Friday on a similar charge preferred by Karl Kass of American Falls.

Meyer, who claims to be a clairvoyant, at one time practiced in Chippewa Falls, Wis. He is under sentence to serve 15 to 14 years in state penitentiary as a result of the first trial.

NEW RISE IN COPPER APPEARS IN PROSPECT

New York —(AP)—The price of export copper was advanced Friday one-quarter of a cent a pound to 12 cents to correspond with the advance of domestic copper Thursday to 19 1/4 cents. Another rise in the domestic price is expected soon.

IS ANNE MORROW LEARNING TO FLY?

Mexican Capital Thinks Lindy's Fiancee Wants to Be Aviatrice

Mexico City —(AP)—This capital was inclined Friday to the belief that Miss Anne Morrow might be an aviatrice before she became Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh and might be able to take her turn at running a honey-moon plane.

There is nothing new to indicate when her marriage to the transatlantic flight hero will take place, but friends say in the past two days possibility that Colonel Lindbergh is teaching her to fly.

Miss Morrow's known enthusiasm for the air and the quickness with which she submitted to "army medicine" until Friday morning, Wednesday, lent foundation to indications that she wishes and soon may be able, to handle a plane herself.

Flying to the exclusion of almost everything else has been Colonel Lindbergh's life. It is regarded as not improbable that Miss Morrow wishes that intimate knowledge of his problems and his work which only knowledge and ability to fly herself will give her.

Some significance is given to her poem, "Height," winner of a Smith college alumnae prize:

"I pushed my head against the blue,
Still, like a singing lark, I find Rapture to leave the grass behind.
And times, standing in a crowd,
My lips are cool against a cloud."

CLEAR RAIL TRACKS AFTER DERAILMENT

Baraboo —(AP)—Although the northwestern railroads tracks between Marshfield and Trempealeau were passable Friday to trains at a slow speed, wrecking crews from this city and La Crosse were still at work clearing the right of way after 26 freight cars piled up in a derailment between those points late Wednesday night. A broken wheel is thought to have caused the wreck.

While no one was injured in the accident, traffic in both directions was completely blocked until late Thursday. All trains were rerouted over the tracks of the Milwaukee road until Friday morning. Northwestern officials expected that the right-of-way would be completely cleared and necessary repairs to the tracks completed late Friday.

SET DATE FOR FARM RELIEF HEARINGS

Washington —(AP)—The house agriculture committee Friday decided to open hearings on the proposed farm relief legislation 19 days before the convening of the special session of congress in April. Chairman Hiram Boren of the committee said that the congress was convened on April 10 the hearings would begin March 22.

McGurn's Blonde Tries To Provide His Alibi

Chicago —(AP)—The crimson picture of seven dead men, painted in blood on a garage floor two weeks ago, Friday had superimposed upon it its usual outlines the slim, smart beauty of "Lulu-Lou" Rolfe—Jack McGurn's "blonde alibi."

Rolfe was in jail. So was Roscoe Fennell. But "Lulu-Lou" Rolfe, held in the women's quarters of the police station, was the most picturesque personality among the only persons thus far arrested in connection with the seven murders.

Out north, on Addison-st., five-year-old Bernada played; blue-eyed, curly haired Bernada, daughter of Louie Rolfe by a short-lived marriage that took place when "Lulu-Lou" was of high school age. She lives with her grandmother, Louise Rolfe's mother.

Louise Rolfe is not the mother type. She is modish, sophisticated, slender and bejeweled.

A slender band of gold showed above one curved ankle. "It's got my name on it, so they can't lose me," she said.

As she talked, quite frankly, with reporters there was a broad hint at times that she was spoofing. She related for example, that she is of French, English and Indian descent, going into elaborate details; and when the roomful of writers seemed to be giving her story serious attention she laughed, a little contemptuously.

This drew a compliment on her nerves.

"No nerves? Of course not," she spoke with a trace of bitterness, holding her finely groomed fingertips out for them to see. The polished nails were bitten to the quick.

To say that Jack McGurn was mixed up in the Valentine day massacre is to Louise Rolfe, ridiculous. To say, as the police have often enough, that Jack McGurn is the ace of gangster machine gunners, and "a tough boy with a red" doesn't go over with her.

There is no attempt at pretense from "Lulu-Lou" as to her relationship with McGurn. They are not married, she said.

DUNCAN BEER MEASURE GETS ASSEMBLY O. K.

Lower House Concurs in Resolution Providing for State Referendum

Madison —(AP)—The assembly Friday concurred in the Duncan resolution providing for a state referendum in April on the repeal of the state dry law legalization of 2.75 per cent beer.

The vote of concurrence which, unless motion for reconsideration after the passage of the resolution, will put state enforcement of the dry laws to popular referendum was 43 to 27 with 14 paired.

Those who voted in favor of the referendum are: Ebben, Dillingham, Cords, Buntin, Budlong, Brunette, Barnard, Barber, Huestead, Hitt, Gebert, Camper, Fronke, Engel, Ellenbecker, Lamoreaux, Lafey, Kryszak, Ticker, Keller, Kehring, Janke, Praskold, Prescott, Plim, Nickson, Moul, Miller, Meyer, Metink, Mauthe, Malchow, Perry, Weller, Wenz, Sullivan, Springer, Schoenebeck, Schauer, Rowlands, Rohan, Rheindans, Reis.

Those who voted no: Dewey, Carow, Burnham, Bingham, Beck, J. C. Hanson, C. E. Hall, Grandine, Goff, Edwards, McDowell, Gomis, Larson, Langue, Lalor, Kanne, Jackson, Ingalls, Pahl, Mulder, Miller, Thayer, Stephens, Smith, E. G. Shagg, Saugen.

Those who were paired: Mersch, O'Connor, Penniston, Husband, Gilbertson, Ashley, Davies.

AFTER LONG FIGHT
The concurrence, on which an effort to immediately elicit the victory failed, came after three assemblies of members of the Coolidge cabinet are to leave, none have made public announcement of that fact or revealed their business plans for the future.

Cal Finds New Berth For Wilbur

Secretary of Navy Nominated as Judge of United States Circuit Court

Washington —(AP)—Curtis D. Wilbur, secretary of the navy, was nominated by President Coolidge Friday for the United States circuit judge for the Ninth circuit. By the nomination President Coolidge settled the future status of one of the first members of his cabinet whose plans have become definitely known.

The retirement of the secretary also will make it possible for Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, to become secretary of the interior in the Hoover cabinet without there being two brothers in the cabinet.

U. S. Judge Scores Cops At Superior

Charges of Easy Methods Toward Bootleggers Are Made in Court

Superior —(AP)—Sensational charges of misconduct on the part of many municipal officials in showing undue leniency toward what he termed this city's underworld and bootleggers were made here by Judge Claude Z. Luse, presiding over the present session of the Western district of the federal court here. Luse made the statement before sentencing three Superior bootleggers, convicted earlier in the week by the jury in federal court.

"We find that in the city of Superior it is very easy for anybody to go into the liquor business and hire stool pigeons to be arrested on a while by the police. They go down to police headquarters and give some fictitious name and apparently the municipal court accepts the name," the judge said.

"It is a disgraceful situation, unqualifiedly disgraceful. The police department of this city ought to be ashamed of itself. Municipal court judges ought to be ashamed of themselves and so should the city attorney and the assistant district attorney," the judge added.

Continuing to score the practice of superior police in allowing bootleggers to give fictitious names and arrested and convicted of liquor law violations, Judge Luse characterized Superior's method of handling liquor law violations as "a mere system of licensing license upon these peddlers."

While admitting that the situation as it concerned him personally was not in his capacity as a federal judge, was none of his business, Luse said in conclusion, "If the good people of the city of Superior could realize what the situation is, I am sure, in the light of my 25 years of experience as a resident of the city, there would be a wholesale cleaning out, and it certainly needs to be done."

Friends of Retiring President Begin Saying Goodbye to Coolidge

Washington —(AP)—On the eighth anniversary of his arrival in Washington, President Coolidge presided Friday at the last meeting of his cabinet, thanked his group of official advisers for their services and expressed regret that the time had come for a severance of their close association.

The occasion also reflected Mr. Coolidge's feeling of relief that he is laying aside the responsibilities that have been his so long.

To each of the cabinet members the president has sent a letter of appreciation which was described by the recipients themselves as a touching tribute and a splendid memento of their service in office.

As is usual, the cabinet officers arrived at the executive offices one by one, but by 10:30 all were in their places.

A little more than a half hour later, Secretary West emerged, followed closely by Secretary Kellogg. One by one, as they had gone in the remainder of the cabinet left the White House. Outside the executive offices were photographers were waiting with a demand that they pose for pictures.

LARGE CROWD SEES FAIR ON FIRST DAY DESPITE BAD ROADS

Select Winners in School Booth Exhibits — U. W. Man Discusses Cars

By W. F. WINSEY

Kaukauna — Despite the unfavorable condition of the country roads, the usual crowds for a fair in this city surged through the corridors and rooms of the four buildings housing displays of the sixth annual mid-winter fair, Thursday afternoon. In number and quality, the exhibits, set up in the forenoon, compared favorably with the best exhibits of former years. In the afternoon judging in all departments was begun and in some finished. Prof. Benjamin Elliot of the University of Wisconsin addressed 100 men in the high school on Care of the Automobile and Tractor Engines.

Farm products are exhibited in the municipal building, school work, needlework and fancy work, culinary articles and articles in the high school, and articles in the auditorium. Except in manual training and home economics, the educational exhibits are set up in booths. The women's exhibits are very tastefully arranged on the walls and on tables. In the city school exhibits, the judges awarded first premium for best booth to the Combined Locks school, second to Nicolet school, Kaukauna, and second also to the Park school, Kaukauna. The judges were A. G. Hortonville and Miss Nellie McDermott, New London.

For best booth in rural school exhibits, Little Chute school was awarded first place, Little Chicago school, second place, and Elmblad school, third place. The judges were E. A. Seymour, Brown-co superintendent, and two of his superintending teachers. The school teachers and pupils in this contest were: Little Chute, 59 pupils, Agnes Egan, teacher; Elmblad school, 45 pupils, Margaret Kronz, teacher; Ashwaubena school, 38 pupils, Louise Kurz, teacher; Twin Willows school, 35 pupils, Alice Wiedenhaupt, teacher; Speel school, 18 pupils, Margaret Wall, teacher; Whispering Pines, 40 pupils, Charles Eikhoff, teacher; Little Chicago school, 15 pupils, Margaret De Bruce, teacher.

Oak Grove school, 42 pupils, Margaret Walker, teacher; Woodlawn school, 33 pupils, Helen Gillispie, teacher; Sleepy Hollow school, 12 pupils, Anne Tornan, teacher; Garfield school, Greenleaf, Sadie Maloney, teacher.

Of the food department, the members of the committee are, Mrs. Chamberlain, Mrs. Ramsey and Mrs. Markholm. The judges are, Mr. E. Becker and Mr. J. J. Martins. Chairman of the art committee is Miss Otis, and the judges, Mrs. F. F. Wetters. The needlework committee consists of Mrs. F. W. Grogan, Mrs. W. N. Nolan and Mrs. M. Raught. The judges are Mrs. J. M. Jansen and Mrs. George Fargo.

MERCHANDISE INTERESTING
The display of merchandise in the auditorium, set up in booths around the walls of the building, together with continuous entertainment, is attracting and holding a large proportion of the visitors.

In the farm products department are 135 exhibits of various kinds set up in competition. Malloch Ryan is chairman of the farm committee, and W. D. Brownson, Smith-Hughes instructor of Shiloh school, is doing the judging. Mr. Brownson finished his work on Friday morning. In his talk on Care of the Automobile and Tractor Engines, Prof. Elliot discussed the battery, cooling system, and lubrication of the internal combustion engine.

Some of his striking statements were: "My little girl knows more about the construction and running of an automobile engine than most did 10 years ago. Due to neglect of the operators, more automobile engines are in the junk heap today than from the effect of wear and tear. Nothing about the running of an automobile engine costs the owner more money than neglect in lubrication."

KEEP BATTERY FILLED

The battery should be kept adequately filled with distilled water at all times, according to the speaker. In summer the battery should be prevented from over-charging, and in winter it should be kept fully charged. In winter the battery can be maintained at full charge by setting the generator at from 18 to 20 amperes. If the battery is not fully charged it is liable to freeze in winter and be destroyed.

A storage battery is only about one-half efficient in winter, the speaker said. We should keep a battery as fully charged as possible if we expect it to start the car in winter when the oil is cold. For testing a battery, a hydrometer is a very serviceable contrivance in rural districts, and it costs very little.

Battery terminals should always be kept clean. Ammonia solution may be used to remove the green material that collects at the battery connections. After the removal of the green material, the connection should be covered with vaseline. The battery should be securely fastened in place.

If one had the money that is lost in the cost of cooling systems in winter as a result of pure neglect, he could take a trip to foreign countries and not feel the expense," said the speaker.

A fifty per cent solution of alcohol makes an excellent protection for the cooling system against freezing. The solution must be very carefully watched on account of the evaporation of the alcohol, and if it is found weak more solution or more alcohol must be added. There is a question about how much dependence should be placed on the filling station hydrometer.

A 50 per cent glycerine solution serves very well, but the glycerine passes readily through joints. Some manufacturers request that glycerine be not used in their cars as they consider it unsatisfactory.

A certain anti-freeze mixture has lately been placed on the market as the only perfect solution, but the quantity to fill a one and one-half gallon radiator costs $7.00.

Mayor of Atlanta Praises Wisconsin for Building Up Friendships

BY EWALD L. ALMEN

Associated Press Staff Writer
Atlanta, Ga. — (AP) — Atlanta opened its doors to members of the Wisconsin Good Will tour train Thursday afternoon, as the ambassadors from the north arrived at 4 o'clock. As the delegation got off the special train that brought it from Chattanooga, it was met by city officials, accompanied by the city band. From the station visitors were taken to the city hall in the heart of the city. Standing on the steps of the city hall, Mayor Ragland greeted the visitors from Wisconsin and told them to make use of everything Atlanta had to offer during their stay in the city.

"It is indeed a privilege for Atlanta," he said "that the people of Wisconsin think enough of us to send a special train all the way from the north to visit us and bring good will. I regret that the stay in the city is so short but at any rate I hope you will look upon us of Atlanta as the closest of Wisconsin's friends."

Lee I. Yorkson, manager, then presented the mayor with five pound packages of Wisconsin-made cheese. White Mayor Ragland thanked Yorkson and George Dobbins, tour secretary, cameraman and newspaper took pictures.

Two double-decked busses then took the Wisconsin delegation for a tour of the city, visiting both industrial and residential sections. A fleet of motor cycle officers, armed with sirens, cleared the heavy traffic for visitors as they sped through the city. Crowds jammed the entrance of the city hall as the visitors were welcomed and cheered as the busses took them on sightseeing trips.

After a tour through the city, the visitors were taken to the chamber of commerce building where they were given a banquet by the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce. Atlanta is the seventh city visited since the tour began.

JUDGE HEINEMANN ASKS FOR BETTER CHILDREN'S CODE

Hearing on Proposed Measure Attracts Large Crowd in State Capitol

Madison — (AP) — The proposed children's code to consolidate, clarify and strengthen all laws affecting all laws affecting children was called everything from a perfect piece of legislation to an unconstitutional one in the assembly judiciary committee hearing Thursday.

Veteran capitol workers said the hearing drew the largest crowd that has been interested in any measure since the administration tax bill during Senator Blain's term as governor.

After 101 persons had announced themselves either supporters or opponents of the bill, Mrs. J. W. Gross, Milwaukee chairman of the Wisconsin Conference of Social Work general committee on the children's code, explained its conception, development and presentation.

Justice E. Ray Stephens of the state supreme court, called the bill one of the best pieces of social work in the history of the state. Justice Wilcox, chairman of the state industrial commission, supported the bill, as did Miss Marie Kohler, sister of the Governor, Father F. M. McEvoy, Milwaukee, E. M. Bragstad, Stoughton, representing a church organization, C. G. Harper, state health officer, and resigned County Judge James Hill of Baraboo endorsed the bill, Harper saying the legislature might look at the bill from "the purely dollars and cents aspect," and still pass the measure.

Judge Hill elaborated an adoption of the proposed code, endorsing them, Professors J. H. Kahn and J. L. Gillin, of the University of Wisconsin, approved the measure. They were followed by W. J. Morgan, Milwaukee, former attorney general who represented the Big Brothers and Big Sisters club of Milwaukee. He said these clubs favored the code because it followed their plan of preventing delinquency before the need for corrective measures appeared.

Opposition to the bill was headed by County Judge Fred H. Heinemann of Outagamie-co. and L. P. Fox, defeated, Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor.

Following the address of endorsement of County Judge Agnew of Waukesha-co. Heinemann made it plain that as representative of the Association of County Judges he was not opposing the measure, but attempting to point to defects with the hope that a stronger code might be drawn. He held that the code committee has stricken many important criminal laws regulating children and does of wrongs against children. Other points he found weak compared with recent statutes.

Mr. Fox was more severe in his criticism of the law. He charged that it makes a delinquent child of almost every boy and girl who has ever been guilty of wrong. It gives authority to enter the home and tell parents and guardians they are not operating that institution correctly, he said.

STEEL LEADERS ARE EXPERIMENTING TO MAINTAIN PROFITS

Constant Study and Improvement of Methods May Bring Results

BY J. C. ROYLE

New York—Profits and prices are up in the steel industry. But the major factors in that line are not resting on their oars and letting the boat run on momentum. They are determined to keep profits up, even should prices suffer a setback. They are doing this by constant study and improvement of methods.

How effective these methods are expected to be is indicated by the action of the United States Steel Corporation in increasing its common shares of capital stock and eliminating its bonds outstanding.

Men in most intimate touch with the steel industry declared today that this move could not be interpreted as a plan to reduce the dividend rate. Consequently it must mean increasing the distribution of profits by $34,769,530 annually, since 4,966,790 more shares will be issued. The present stockholders have the first chance to secure this extra stock and in reality it is a distribution to them in the form of a continuous extra dividend although it is not called such.

WILL RETIRE BONDS

It never has been the policy of this great corporation to take on increased dividend obligations unless they had every chance of being maintained. By the plan, bonds totaling $21,385,000 will be retired and interest on them of $13,569,250 a year saved.

The leading interest is far from being the only corporation in the business which has prospered. The list includes Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Otis Steel, Midland Steel Products, Central Alloy Steel, A. M. Byars, Jones and Laughlin and a score of others. Those which have prospered most are the most active today in efforts to reduce costs.

The experimental laboratories and plants of the midwest are busily engaged in perfection of improved rolling mill methods. These immediate developments are expected to affect first flat roll steel, including sheets, strips, tinplate and pipe.

Experiments with electrically welded pipe and tests of expansion methods are being conducted at the plants of Youngstown Sheet & Tube and Republic Iron—Steel. The electric weld method is expected eventually to replace the furnace method.

An expansion tube mill which will take an eight-inch pipe and expand to 12 or 14 inches is being installed by the Aetna Standard Engineering company for the National Tube company.

A modern steam power plant for the Youngstown properties of Republic Iron & Steel is expected to be put into commission this year. The plant will utilize the waste gases of four blast furnaces, which will heat 400 pounds to the square inch of the boilers. These in turn will drive turbines generating electric current. Electric-driven machinery is expected to replace steam driven machinery in blowing mills as a result. All these innovations are designed to cut costs.

Steel production in the Mahoning valley is on the same high operating schedule established early this year. This week 48 open hearths and 122 independent sheet mills are active. In the Chicago district another blast furnace has just been blown in and a new furnace is to go into commission at Gary, Ind., shortly.

Birmingham is going strong while the demand for products from the Pueblo, Utah, and California plants is insistent. The producers of raw ore in the northwest have taken note of the extent of the expansion. MORE Copequallevmore

Wealthy, Retired; Strong Indorser

After Taking Sargon Has More Strength and Energy Than In Years, Says Burns

"I have always been a strong healthy man up to a few months ago when I had a bad attack of Flu. My whole system became badly run-down. I lost my old-time strength and energy."

"I began to suffer with indigestion and biliousness."

CHARLES E. BURNS
Everything I ate disagreed with me and I was constantly spitting up undigested food sour as vinegar. I was constipated, had severe headaches and was continually taking laxatives. My tongue was coated and my breath was awful. I would tire easily and my sleep was badly broken. These troubles were new with me.

"In only a few days after I started taking Sargon and the pills, I began to improve. Four bottles of Sargon and two of pills made me feel like a different man. I have regained my lost weight and am always hungry. What I eat, digests. I am no longer bothered with bloating, gas or belching, not biliousness and headaches. I sleep soundly and have my old-time 'pep' and energy. I feel fine all the time."

"I have never indorsed a medicine—but I'm telling all my friends about the Sargon treatment."

The above statement was made by Charles E. Burns, wealthy retired real estate and insurance man of Girard, Kan., a recent Kansas City visitor. Since his wife's death a few years ago, Mr. Burns turned his farm over to his son, sold his other business and is taking life easy. He is a Mason and one of the best known men in that part of the state. Sargon may be obtained in Appleton from Volgt's Drug Store and in Kaukauna from H. G. Brauer.

COMPLETE PLANS FOR IKE WALTON BANQUET

Doellner, Mauthe to Be Principal Speakers on Program

Plans have been completed for the annual banquet of the local chapter of the Izaak Walton League at Pythian Castle hall at 6:30 next Wednesday evening. Fred H. Doellner, Chicago, general manager of the Izaak Walton League of America, and William Mauthe, Fond du Lac, chairman of the Wisconsin conservation commission, will be the speakers.

An Alaskan caribou and salmon dinner is to be served and it is expected 225 men from Fond du Lac, Oshkosh, Green Bay, Appleton and other valley cities will be present. Oshkosh will send a delegation of 25 men, it is reported. The attendance is to be limited to 225 men and no tickets will be sold at the door, according to Richard Sykes, president of the local chapter.

A special program of entertainment has been arranged. A six piece orchestra will furnish music during the banquet, and a songfest will be directed by Dr. E. L. Baker of the Lawrence Conservatory of Music. Miss Irene Bidwell will be the accompanist. Vocal selections are to be sung by conservatory students.

William Falatick is chairman of the arrangements committee. Henry Williamson and Joseph Kerrigan are in charge of decorations. The hall is to be decorated with pine boughs and evergreen twigs.

Parisian Map Imprinted On French Silk On Display

A detailed map of Paris imprinted on French silk is one of the exhibits in the collection of "Americana" now on display at Lawrence college. The exhibit will be shown from Feb. 25 to March 9 in Dr. O. P. Fairfield's lecture room, and will be open to the public every afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock.

The display graphically reveals the contemporary renaissance of the applied arts in the designing of textiles. The best works of those distinguished artists who have, during the past three or four years, brought about a veritable revitalization of American fabric designing, are shown in a sort of bird's eye view of the scene.

The artists whose designs are on display are both American and French, but only the works executed for the American silk market and which reflect modern American taste are displayed in the exhibit at Lawrence. Among the Americans appear Ralph Barton, represented by his famous print, "The Map of Paris"; Clayton Knight, by a motif of umbrellas and characteristic New York weather entitled "April"; and Steichen by a photographic study of "Thread". In the French group are found Boutet de Monvel with a design of "Palms" which reveals the exquisite craftsmanship of the artist's formal work; Zig Brummer's "Lots of Dots" embodying all the cunning known to the Eol deBouloune; and "Cards" by Guy Arnoux which realizes all the design possibilities of colorful pastebords.

Other items of the exhibition which display particular technical or aesthetic skill in silk fabric designing are "dry brush" prints, hand block prints, photo tweeds and broadweaves. The exhibit comes to Lawrence from the International Art Center in New York.

Madison—(P)—One who, as a clairvoyant, collects several annos for predictions and healing under a guarantee statement, then leaves town with the money, may be arrested for obtaining money under false pretenses, as a vagrant or for telling fortunes, the attorney general advised Victor M. Stolt, district attorney of Port Hope.

Mr. Stolt advised the attorney general that one man paid the attorney in question $50 for a "character reading" and advice on how to improve his health. The victim was given a receipt and a pledge to the effect that he would not return to the town. The attorney general advised that such a person is liable for arrest as a vagrant.

H. Pierce from Congressman Florian Lambert. The telegram read: "Report of joint departmental committee submitted to house of representatives calls for new public building at Menasha. Amount, $100,000."

"No one was more enthused over the telegram than Postmaster Pierce who has been working hard for a new federal building during his two terms of office. He is unable to state whether the $100,000 includes the cost of the site. Several years ago an appropriation for a site was made by congress, but when the world war was declared it was cancelled.

Congressman Lambert's activity in pushing matters in congress concerning the proposed new building is the result of a conference of business men and manufacturers in Menasha three months ago which he attended and at which he agreed to do all he could to secure the necessary appropriation.

Menasha's need for a new building is very urgent, according to Postmaster Pierce. The present quarters have long since been outgrown notwithstanding they have twice been enlarged. Every department is congested and the postal employees are cramped at every turn.

Postmaster Pierce took over the postoffice the annual receipts were $35,390.92. Since then they have grown to more than $60,000.

SECOND CLASS BOOST
While there has been a continuous and rapid growth in all classes of mail handled the greatest congestion shown is in second class mail matter which has increased from less than 200,000 pounds annually, when Mr. Pierce took charge of the office, to over 600,000 pounds at the present time. The need of safety vaults is very urgent. The only protection there is at present is an ordinary safe which makes it necessary for the stock to be carried in the vaults of the First National bank. Adequate fire protection also is lacking.

The postoffice has been in its present location for more than 25 years. As that will be left to representatives of the government, no site for the proposed new building has been selected. The chances are, however, it will not be located on Main-st as now, the policy of the government being to select a corner of a side street as near as possible to the business district.

The carrier system in Menasha went into effect about the time the postoffice moved to its present location. It started with four carriers which number has lately been increased to five. One rural carrier works out of Menasha whose route lies principally in the town of Menasha.

ETHER NOT OWNED BY ANYBODY, AIR LISTENERS TOLD

Former General Counsel of Radio Commission Discusses Problems

BY ROBERT MACK
Copyright, 1929 by the Consolidated
Press Association
Washington — "Who owns the ether?" The question that popular conception has placed foremost among all others involving the thriving young art of radio, is probably the least important of the multitude that must be solved.

This home-spun question of radio law that parlor politicians so often discuss doesn't mean anything, in the opinion of Louis G. Caldwell, former general counsel of the radio commission. He burst the bubble in a talk to the listeners themselves over a net-work of the National Broadcasting company, and in a general discussion of radio law and the vast legal field radio has opened.
As the chairman of the committee on radio law of the American Bar association, his talk was one of the series on jurisprudence now being sponsored by the association.

Until somebody finds out what the ether is, or whether it even exists, he suggested, it is hardly worthwhile
speculating as to who has title to it.
So he concludes, the future of radio does not hang on the slender thread of "who owns the ether?" In fact, he stated, the "ether" exists only in the imagination of scientists and is just a hypothesis which is very convenient for the discussion of electrical phenomena and light rays.

"No one owns the ether or the air and yet it is possible for a person to take a bottle, fill it full of water out of the ocean and thus make it his property," he said. "Likewise a person can compress air into a container and make it private property. So far, however, no one has detected any ether with any of his five senses or caught any and put it into a bottle."

FORESEES DANGER

Mr. Caldwell can foresee dangerous international entanglements if the courts recognize that any person or any nation owned the ether. The so-called ether extends through the universe, into everybody's home and practically everywhere. This also is true between nations, the waves transmitted by stations in this country radiating in all directions, crossing international boundaries and defying the abstract sovereignty of other nations. Stations of other countries similarly are sending disturbances into the United States.

"Manifestly, if any one owns any ether it isn't doing him much good,"
he observes.

Recounting to the listeners the laws that regulate the very means by which his words were being brought to them, Mr. Caldwell pictured the many problems that re-

Lawrence Debaters Are Going To Pacific Coast

Three Lawrence debaters will leave March 20 for the Pacific coast where they will meet teams from 10 western colleges and universities.
The team, composed of Arthur Mueller, Wausau; William Heerman, Sheboygan; and Robert Beggs, Pennascota, Fla., will be accompanied by Coach A. L. Franzke, professor of public speaking at Lawrence college.

This is the first Lawrence team to invade the west in the last five years, and in that time Lawrence has won 22 out of 23 decision debates in which they competed. The one debate was lost to Cornell College on the western trip five years ago.

The Lawrence speakers will debate three questions on their trip. In the question of public ownership of power sources, they will uphold the negative side, and on the question "Resolved: That a substitute should be adopted for trial by jury," they will present the affirmative arguments.
On the third question, "Resolved:
That the plea of temporary insanity in defense of crime should be prohibited by law," they will take the negative angle.

The western schedule, which will take three weeks, follows: March 20,

PUBLIC WORKS BOARD MAY MEET ON MONDAY

A meeting of the board of public works probably will be called next Monday, according to Mayor A. C.
Rule. One of the principal matters to be considered is the proposed extension of W. Second-st from S.
Bounds-st west across the railroad tracks. After sustaining the mayor's veto of the proposal at a recent meeting, the council allowed the matter to be re-introduced, and referred it to the board of public works with instruction to make a report at the next council meeting.

main to be solved. Almost daily hearings are held by the commission in which disputes arise as to legal precedent, and they practically do not exist. On many questions, the commission, its lawyers and the lawyers representing the stations are feeling their way cautiously, trying to find helpful analogies from the rules that govern other kinds of business and human relations and to work out principles that will insure an enduring foundation for the developments that are sure to come in the future," he said.

A glowing tribute to Herbert Hoover and his relation to radio was paid by Mr. Caldwell. "No more fitting conclusion to a talk on radio law could be made than a reference to the optimism which we may all feel for the future of radio regulation and radio law during the next administration," he asserted.

PUPILS DISPLAY OWN THOUGHTS BY DRAWING

To inspire individual thought and original conceptions of an idea, pupils in the first and second grade at Jefferson school were given the opportunity, during a recent drawing period, of drawing pictures of anything they did during Christmas vacation. Some of the better pictures were one of a boy throwing snowballs at a snowman by Allen Stube;
a girl carrying out ashes by Ethel Mae Rademacher; a girl shovelling snow by Dorothy Fischer; a child riding on a pony in a snowstorm, Carleton Brecklin; and a boy skating
by Glen Scherke.

ESTATES TOTALING $54,000 SETTLED IN PROBATE COURT

St. Therese Congregation
Willed $500 by D. J.
Crowe

Three estates totaling $54,000 were disposed of in probate court by Judge Fred V. Heinemann. They were the D. J. Crowe estate of $9, $25.57; Albert Breitrick estate of $17,250, and Helen Glassbrenner estate of $29,557.81.

Mr. Crowe's estate, which consisted entirely of bonds, mortgages and notes, was willed almost entirely to two nieces, Mary Williams and Louise Canary of Beaver Dam. Bequests of $500 to St. Therese congregation, $2,000 to Mary McGiven, $1,500 to Mary Williams, $500 to Louise Canary and a trust fund of $2,000 to his brother Jerry, are first taken from the estate and the remainder is divided between the two nieces. After the death of his brother the $2,000 also goes to the nieces.

All the income of Albert Breit-rick's estate is willed to his wife and she also receives permission to use any part of the principal for her maintenance. After her death the estate is to be divided among George,
William and Ora Breitrick, Hattie Kesseneber and Emma Feist.
Alvin Jensen, brother of Helen Glassbrenner, is named executor of her estates which totals $29,557.81.

DISTRIBUTE HEALTH PAMPHLETS TO PUPILS

Miss Marie Klein, county nurse, is distributing a number of health pamphlets in the schools at Little Chute and Kimberly. The pamphlets list communicable diseases telling of early signs and symptoms, period of communicability and rules for school attendance. The bulletins are prepared by the bureau of communicable diseases of the state board of health.

He also gets $1.00 under the terms of her will. Her sister Mary of Appleton gets $1,900 and Geraldine Krell of Chicago is bequeathed $500.
Her brother George of Chicago, gets only $5. The income of the balance of the estate is willed to her mother and upon the latter's death it is to be divided among the beneficiaries.

Names of Board

As an incentive to better writing and spelling in the second grade at First Ward school, from five to eight of the best spelling papers are selected each day and the child is rewarded by a red star after his name on the blackboard. At the end of the week the pupils who have had five perfect papers are excused from the review test on Friday. On Wednesday stars were won by Dor-

THE MISSISSIPPI WATERWAY

According to an Associated Press dispatch from St. Paul, Major Charles L. Hall, army engineer, has made a second adverse report on the proposed nine-foot channel for the upper Mississippi river. It is Major Hall's contention that there is not in prospect sufficient commerce on the upper Mississippi to justify the cost of deepening the channel. Appeal is to be made by the commercial interests of St. Paul to the army board at Washington to override this opinion. It appears that Major Hall has made two reports, the first some years ago to the effect that the probable traffic over a nine-foot channel would be insufficient to warrant the expenditure required for the improvement. He has now made a second report stating that he sees no reason for exceptions to his original conclusion.

The amount of traffic that interior waterways will carry is entirely problematical. This is so particularly where they lead to outlets that are off the main commercial highways and in a round about way to outside markets. In the case of the Mississippi and its tributaries, the outlet is to the gulf of Mexico, and thence east or west by the Atlantic or the Panama canal. The great bulk of American commerce is eastward and westward in its movement, and mostly easterly. Inter-city traffic would hardly justify any extensive river improvements. Their value lies properly in affording sea outlet.

So far as the north and central west is concerned, it is clear that the one real egress to the sea is by way of the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence river. There is nothing problematical about the commerce this waterway would carry. Moreover, it would meet all the requirements of this vast interior section for direct access to foreign markets.

The question raised by Major Hall in regard to upper Mississippi river improvement would seem to apply to the nine-foot channel Chicago wishes to build connecting it with the Illinois river. Would there be enough traffic over it to warrant the improvement? Of course, the boosters of this waterway picture for it a veritable deluge of traffic, but there is nothing in the economic situation as it actually exists to justify the extravagant claims made for it. We have always felt that Chicago's main interest in this waterway project was to relieve it from the necessity of constructing sewage reduction works. A nine-foot channel would carry small barges only, and there would have to be transshipment at New Orleans.

Undoubtedly the improvement will be authorized at some time because the political interests which are supporting it are sufficiently strong in congress to obtain recognition, but its practical value is in doubt. All of which goes to show the great importance of concentrated federal action in the authorization and construction of the St. Lawrence seaway. It ought to precede all other waterway-improvements involving large expenditures.

RAILROAD PROSPERITY

The railroad industry is prospering even while tremendous changes are coming about in the traffic situation. According to the Railroad Age the number of passengers carried in 1928 was the smallest since 1905. This decline is caused by the increased use of motor cars for travel. But while passenger traffic as a whole has decreased, commuting and long-distance travel have grown and are likely to continue growing. It is the group of travelers between these two extremes who use the automobile more and more.

If passenger traffic is falling off so rapidly, why are the railroads thriving? Their prosperity is based on increased freight haulage. Neither motor truck nor commercial airplane has seriously ously invaded this field. There has been freight enough for all forms of transportation, and there probably will be plenty so long as our prosperity lasts.

THE SHIFTING POPULATION

The country's problem today is people moving away to the city. The city's problem is people moving away to the country. That is, to the suburban area. Both of these are really wholesome tendencies.

Farm population moving citywards is surplus population. It moves from economic causes. It seeks an environment where it hopes to remedy these defects. On the whole it succeeds. If it were not succeeding, other rural residents would not continue following its example.

Country people who succeed in the city like the city. Their children may like it. But the second or third generation usually wants to get back to the country. And it gets as far as it can, usually making a compromise. It keeps the city job but regains something of the space, freedom and healthfulness of rural life.

The motor car has immensely strengthened this tendency. For residence purposes, city folk press out farther and farther around the edges of their community. Thus the centralizing and decentralizing tendencies of population at present may nearly balance each other. The result, when the intermediate steps have been taken and the necessary real estate adjustment made, will be the finest community life there ever was.

As for those who remain in the rural country, they will not suffer. Fewer people on the soil will make more from it. They will get their city-made products cheaper. They will enjoy nearly all the benefits of city life except the crowding—if you can call that a benefit.

OVERCOMING THE DRUG HABIT

Studies made in Philadelphia, according to Dr. Morris Fishbein, show that "drug addiction" does not produce, in most instances, permanent physical and mental changes, and it is possible to rehabilitate the addict successfully if he can be once relieved of his craving. This is one of the most encouraging developments in the long fight against the narcotic evil.

It is admitted that the ideal treatment has not yet been found. But there are several forms of treatment in use which succeed fairly well in eliminating the drug craving, by deprivation and the administration of medicines. It is reassuring to be told that when this is done, the victim is usually ready for a fresh start, with a mind and body not hopelessly wrecked by the devastating drug. With proper food and exercise, and favorable surroundings, health may then be regained and the victim may become again a useful member of society.

The worst thing about such cases usually is that, after an apparent cure, the victim's will remain weak, so that if tempted he may acquire the habit again, more easily than before. Here is a factor that has not been given enough attention. The will must be strengthened. Psychological help is needed, as well as medical and physical help.

RUNNING TRAINS BY RADIO

The New York Central railroad plans to install radio-telephone service between the crew in the locomotive and the crew in the caboose on all its freight trains, if the radio commission grants the permission asked. The railroad has already been experimenting with such service on four regularly scheduled freight trains. It has been successful. Officials believe it would be of great value in promoting the safe operation of trains and greater efficiency in the handling of freight.

Such a system should not conflict with other radio service, because it would require only one short wave frequency for all trains, each train having one receiving and sending telephone set of low power and limited range. The receivers, set up in the locomotives, would be in continuous operation. Speech transmitted from the caboose would be produced on a loud speaker immediately above the engineer's seat. Modern freight trains, particularly in the fairly level region, are often a mile in length, making communication by ordinary signals difficult. The usefulness of the radio telephone seems obvious.

Jack rabbits have been known to run at the rate of 35 miles an hour.

SIGNS OF GREATNESS

A friend of mine was in Alabama recently, and the only church in the town where he spent a Sunday was presided over by a Negro preacher. The preacher, after comparing himself to Caesar, Napoleon, and Theodore Roosevelt, said: "All great men do not come from cities. No, Ah! myself com' from a no count hill town down here in Alabama, where they still bl'ies climpick in calomel, hell and the Democratic party."

"You're not my inspiration," sighed Harold the Seer wearily, as he looked at the report on what copper is doing on the New York Stock Exchange.

Little Son: "Daddy, may I go to the circus this afternoon?"
Daddy: "Not this afternoon, you can't. Imagine wanting to go to the circus when your Aunt Amelia is in town!"

At a small station in Alabama the daily passenger train was getting ready to leave.
"All right back there?" bawled the conductor.
"Hol' on! Hol' on!" shrieked a feminine voice from inside the waiting room, "Jess wait till I gets mah clothes on!"

And then, as the occupants of the train craned their necks expectantly, she appeared with a basketful of laundry.

Local lady, interviewing cook: "Do you understand French cooking? My husband is very fond of little dainty dishes."

Cook: "Oh, yes, ma'am. I know all them fur-rin' dishes."
Lady, delighted: "Really? What can you do?"
"Well, ma'am, I can cook French beans, German sausage, Brussels sprouts, Jerusalem artichokes, Spanish onions, and Dutch cheese."

"G'way, fellow; what's you know about the Bible anyway?"
"Huh, man, Ah knows ev'athing they is to know about it."

"Yeh? Ah bets five you don't even know th' Lawd's prayer."

"Put up,"
"Where 'is. Go ahead."

"Awright, now—but wait a minute, big boy—which Lawd's prayer is you talkin' about?"

White Wash, a negro, asked for a day off to bury his wife, and then a fortnight later he asked for another day off.
"What's up this time, Washington?"
"Ah's gettin' married, sah."

"Already? Why it's only two weeks since you buried your wife."

"Yes, sah, but Ah don't hold spite long."

Customer in Restaurant: "Serve lobsters here?"

Walter: "Certainly—sit down!"

At dinner on one occasion a professor thought he would ask a colored cloak-room attendant a few questions about his memory. As the attendant handed him his hat he said: "How do you know this one is mine?"
"I don't know that, sah," was the answer.
"Then why do you give it to me?" queried the professor.

"Cause you gave it to me, sah."

"Young lady, how long have you been working around here?"

"Ever since the boss threatened to fire me."

Nervous Old Lady: "Are you sure the train will stop when you pull that rope?"

Conductor: "Absolutely. The other end is tied around the engineer's neck."

Mr. and Mrs. Bertin Ramsey and their daughters, Miss Hallie and Miss Ethel and John Stevens, Jr., were to leave the following Monday for New York, where they were to take a steamer for Italy. Mr. Stevens was to be gone about four weeks.

Mr. Steinacker and Miss Pauline Miller of Grand Chute were married the previous day.

NERVOUS WRECKS CAN HAPPEN, BUT

If you're at all nervous or run-down or neurasthenic or of a nervous temperament, please do not pay any attention to this chapter unless you have the first chapter in this story which was printed here a few days ago. If you didn't save that first chapter, as I advised, you will get nothing out of this one but irritation, which isn't good for a nervous wreck at all. If you didn't save the first chapter, and still persist in reading this one, on your own head be it. I've warned you off. If you are not of a nervous type and have no occasion to excuse your conduct or behavior to yourself or to others, then read on, read on, it can do you no great harm, I'm sure.

Nervous wrecks occur all too frequently; plenty of people are exceedingly nervous, whatever that may mean: the luxuries, indulgences, follies and pretenses of civilized life unquestionably account for the vast number of neurasthenic individuals in the population of these Excited States. But just the same there is no such thing as nerve energy and consequently there can be no exhaustion thereof. Disease conditions that popularly masquerade under the pleasant names of neurasthenia, run down nervous system, nervous exhaustion, are commonly due to wrong living, and by that I mean the evil and all-around, never permit him to chase the cat or squirrel at all, and soon you have on your hands a nervous wreck, if nervous dogs are ever so described.

Sit at a desk or stand at a counter or bench or kitchen table all day, do all your chasing by proxy or all your adventuring in the movies or in book, all your exercise holding down the end of a car, never run a step, never play an active game, be a great sport, a fan but not a participant yourself, blow off trifling quantities of steam yelling and cheering at the ball game or the football game, while you just sit there like an automaton, never climb any trees or cut any grass or work in the garden, never go fishing, always keep your heels well below your head, yet try to pretend you're just as good a man as the chap who knows how to live and lives right, and when your pretense about this fails to seem convincing to your true self go and drown the thought in booze, or belch it out with tobacco or blot it out with your favorite nostrum or drug, and it would be a queer thing indeed if you remained quite normal and a remarkable exception if you didn't plead as an excuse "poor nerves."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Tin Doctors Rather Brassy
The company I work for, writes a young woman, offers free medical examinations to employees. My boss is mad because I refuse to submit to examination by the company's doctor. I have my own doctor, who is a good reputable physician. The boss declares the company can demand that I be examined by the company doctor, and he says there must be some reason why I won't consent.

Answer—A straw showing the direction of the wind. Of course you are not required to submit to an examination by the tin doctor at all. Your own doctor's health certificate is all the law can require; if your own doctor is a legally registered physician, your boss is an offensive misfit and he should be informed where to get off. Your company would make a robot of you. That is the inspiration for most tin doctoring.

Boric Acid for Running Ear
My son had a running ear for three years. Then I tried the remedy you suggested, a solution of about 10 grains of boric acid in the ounce of alcohol, and it cleared the trouble up permanently. (Mrs. S. E. K.)

Answer—It often seems helpful, and never does any harm. Warm the vial to a comfortable degree, by standing it in hot water, just before putting the drops in the ear. Put two or three drops in the ear each night and morning for many weeks. The drought will not sell you the solution of 10 grains of boric acid in the ounce of pure grain alcohol, there is nothing further I can do about it.

Rose Water Lore
Do you think the daily use of glycerin and rose water on the face would tend to cause bad effects or grow hair? (Miss M. C.)

Answer—Rose water is plain water with a wee speck of rose perfume in it. Glycerin, however, is generally not advisable as an application to the skin. You do not explain the purpose of the treatment. No such application will grow hair, but any slight, frequent irritation, such as the regular application of glycerin, is likely to make the normally invisible down on the face heavier and coarser in time. A girl cultivates the finest complexion by avoiding these alleged beauty aids, cosmetics and skin foods.

A BYSTANDER IN WASHINGTON

By HERBERT C. PLUMMER

Washington—In whatever direction Washington's theatre may be going, its history offers one of the most interesting chapters in the drama described so often by theatrical critics—"The Fall of the American Stage."

There was a time, not so long ago, when theatregoers in the national capital turned a proud and defiant eye toward New York from the arches of Ford's theatre. Today it wouldn't take a strong arm to throw a stone from old Ford's to the place where one of Washington's growing number of motion picture palaces rears a decidedly modern head above the theatrical heap.

These two locations mark the strides of the theatre in this city. Taste, if it is the cause, has shifted in such abandon that today finds the cuffs of legitimate houses as frayed as those of the old-time actor who has outlived his usefulness.

THE MOVIES WIN

It seems that Washington has given almost complete sway to the realm of motion picture.

Ford's theatre has been relegated to the dusty shelf of history. True, it is pointed out by barkers on sightseeing buses. It is where President Lincoln was shot by a crazed actor, and—but the barkers forget—it was where Washington's theatrical history was made, and buried. That is what the old-timers say. The moderns have Poll's and the National to answer with.

In the case of Poll's theatre the gleam of hope for that theatre here sits through. But it is dark many weeks in the year. Then there's the new National theatre. Satan rustled in the aisles of the Old National, but with the New National it is a different story. There are lines at the door, to be sure, but a stock company is playing, and at this writing the manager complains that he will probably have to close the doors shortly because he is unable to meet the demands of musicians for a seven-piece orchestra.

DOWN TO SEX FILMS

The Delasee—located within the shadow of the White House and once proud in these parts—has surrendered itself to a musical stock company. The president gave itself to stock. The popularity of stock was given it, and then it died. Lately sex movies have been projected on its screen, but now it is dark.

Even Keith's on Fifteenth, where President Wilson was wont to drop in to lighten the burden of the war days, has locked its doors. Meanwhile the motion picture industry is taking the candy.

And nobody seems able to answer questions about the future of Washington's theatres. The inhabitants merely watch the papers and then go to a movie.

That done, he and his associates denied any connection with the murder. Brutus gloried in his deed. Prince Felix lied his way out of it. He is anything but a heroic figure in the biography.

HIGH COURT WORKS ON TWO TAX CASES QUESTIONING LAW

Decision in Cases Expected to Be Handed Down by Supreme Court March 5

Madison—(P)—Two cases which attack the constitutionality of the law which exempts from taxation merchandise stored in commercial warehouses while in transit from out-of-state points are before the state supreme court. Decisions on them are expected to be handed down Tuesday, March 5.

Because both cases come before the court merely on the question of deciding whether the lower courts acted properly in their rulings on demurrers, the high court is not expected to go into the merits of the case although it may extend its opinion to the questions of constitutionality.

The law is interpreted by the state tax commission, to mean that shipments coming into Wisconsin from other states may be stored in warehouses and be exempt from taxation. It does not, however, extend the exemption to shipments which originate in Wisconsin.

Both cases questioning the legality of the act come from Milwaukee. One is brought by the Milwaukee Sentinel, and the other was started jointly by the Nash Sales, Inc., and the Frint Motor Car Co.

The Sentinel brought suit to recover $850.15 it paid in taxes, interest and penalty on a shipment of print paper in rolls which originated in Wisconsin and was stored in a warehouse. If the paper had come from some neighboring state, there would have been no tax assessment made against it. The City of Milwaukee demurred to the Sentinel suit on the ground there was no cause for action. Circuit Judge Charles A. Aarons sustained the demurrer, and the Sentinel appealed to the supreme court.

Action was brought by the Nash Sales, Inc., and the Frint Motor Car Co., merely to obtain a court interpretation of the law. The state tax commission and the city of Milwaukee, as defendants, demurred to the suit. Judge Edward T. Fairchild overruled their demurrer. The commission and the city appealed his ruling.

An unusual feature of the latter case is the fact that the Milwaukee city attorney and the state's attorney general, in their briefs to the higher court, argue that the law is unconstitutional and should be declared null and void. Ordinarily the attorney general is charged with the task of defending the legality of the laws when an effort is made to have them declared unconstitutional.

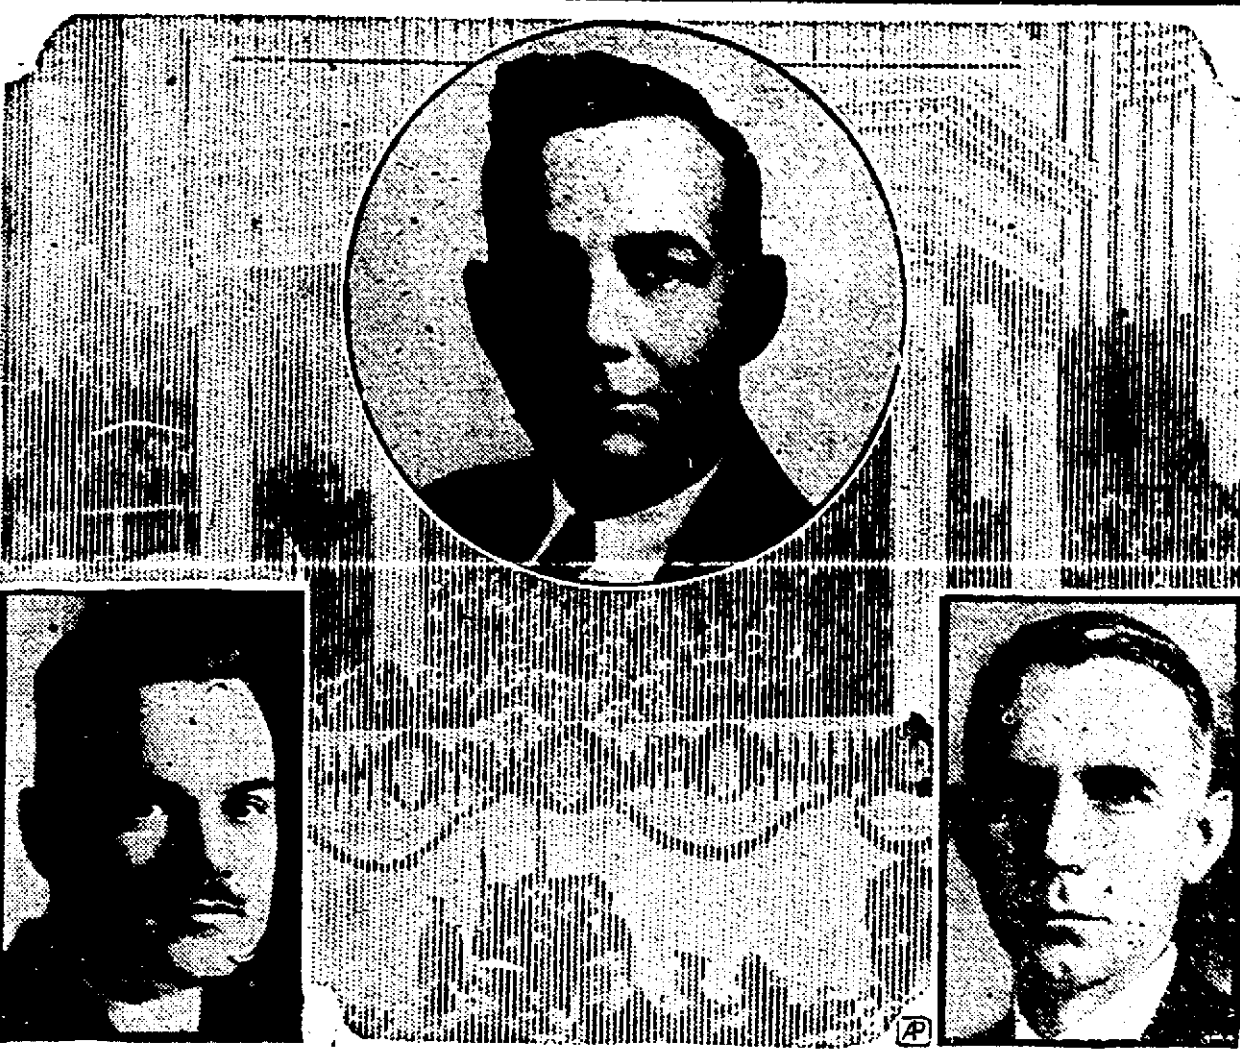

In support of their contention that law permits discrimination, the Nash Sales and the Frint company point to the difference in its application to them. Nash automobiles are manufactured in Wisconsin, driven to Milwaukee, and stored. Under the tax commission interpretation, the law does not exempt the cars from taxation while in storage. The Frint company, on the other hand, receives and stores Oldsmobiles from out of the state. Their machines may be stored in the same commercial warehouse as the Nash cars, but the former pays no tax, while the Nash company's product does.

The attorney general argues in his brief that the two products should be taxed alike.

BUSH TO HAVE CHARGE OF PUBLISHER'S OFFICE

Gordon Bush, who has been employed in the local office of the Midwest Publishing company, will leave March 2 for Milwaukee where he will take over the Milwaukee office of the company. Because several organizations which have magazines published by the local company have offices in Milwaukee, the company maintains a Milwaukee advertising office.

Courtesy Is Blamed For Car Mishaps

Jacksonville, Fla. — (AP) — The "courtesy complex" of the feminine automobile driver is responsible for many smashed fenders and broken headlights, says Mrs. Mittie G. Tipton, Jacksonville policeman, who has made a study of women auto owners.

"The women at the wheel feel that she is entitled to certain privileges, traffic laws or no traffic laws, and she's going to have them," Mrs. Tipton explains. "That is the cause of a high percentage of traffic accidents."

Part of the trouble may be attributed to some women's extreme nervousness and timidity in traffic. Part of it is due to poor judgment, but the major part is just a determined insistence on having their own way. They cut corners, they ignore traffic lights and they make pedestrians jump. They insist on their "privileges."

The feminine driver puts out an arm. It may be a left turn; it may be a right turn or a stop signal. Perhaps she is waving to a friend on the sidewalk or merely flicking ashes from a cigarette, but the fellow behind cannot tell, Mrs. Tipton insists.

There is, however, a word of cheer for the subjects of Mrs. Tipton's comment. She points out that, while women are prone to fray the nerves of the masculine driver, the majority of serious motor accidents are laid to the male autist.

"Only about 15 per cent of the automobile fatalities involve women drivers," she says. "That is not a serious reflection on my sisters."

LUNCHEON — Lenten vegetable soup, banana and peanut salad, raisin brown bread, lemon meringue pie, milk, tea.

DINNER — Baked fish, creamed noodles, spinach and egg timbales, apricot jelly with whipped cream, milk, tea.

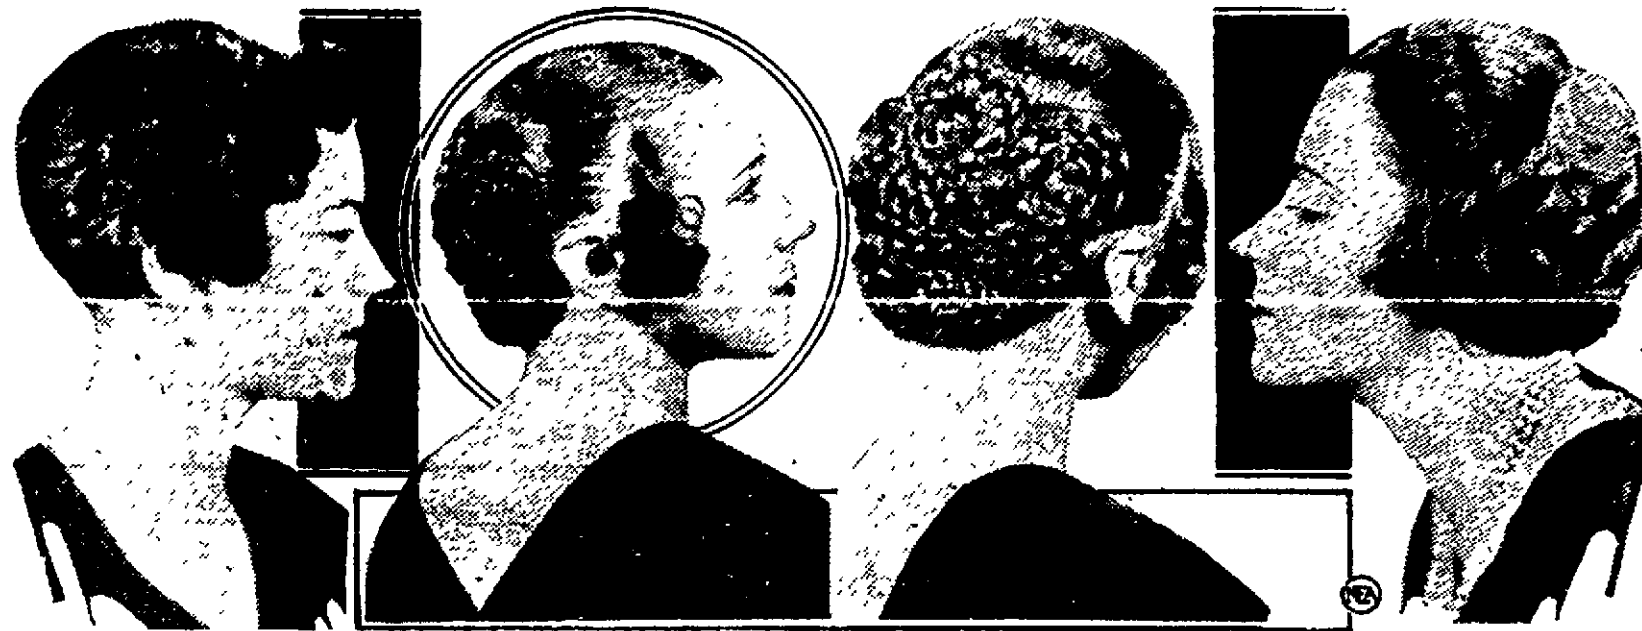

Dip fish into highly salted hot milk and then roll them in sifted dried bread crumbs. This forms a coating over the fish which prevents the escape of the delicately flavored juices. Put the prepared fish in an oiled baking pan and sprinkle over them a tablespoonful of oil for each pound of fish. Bake in a very hot oven for 10 or 15 minutes. This is an excellent way to cook fish since it requires no turning and the fish is easily lifted out of the baking pan to a hot platter without breaking.

LENTEN VEGETABLE SOUP

One cup diced carrots, 3/4 cup diced turnip, 1-1/2 cup thinly sliced onions, 2 cups chopped spinach, 1/2 cup sliced leek, 1/2 cup thinly sliced celery, root, 4 tablespoons butter, 4 cups milk, 2 cups canned tomatoes, 1-1/2 teaspoon soda, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-1/2 teaspoon pepper.

Melt butter and add prepared vegetables. Shake until vegetables are well coated with butter. Cover closely and cook over a low fire for 15 minutes. Stir occasionally to prevent burning. Rub tomatoes through a coarse sieve to remove seeds and add soda to puree. Stir well and add to hot milk thickened with flour stirred to a smooth paste with a little cold milk. Add vegetables and let simmer for 45 minutes. Season with salt and pepper and force through a colander. Reheat and serve with grated cheese.

The Long And Short Of Your Hair Are Passe; "Father Of Bob" Decrees In Between Mode

Some bobs that Antoine created at his shop in Saks Fifth Avenue, New York, show how he adapts the coiffure to different types. (Left to right) Swirls of little curls soften the face line of one very individual coiffure, with the back of the head a mass of fine flat little ringlets. For the blonde with very regular features, Antoine draws the hair back smoothly and tight, parted in the middle, with little temple curls reminiscent of the Nineties and a swoosh in the back. For the woman with the long slender neck, Antoine makes biscuits or narrow braids across the back of the head. These may be artificial hair. The coiffure at the extreme right shows how the longer bob allows a woman to look smartly sleek for daytime sportswear.

BY ROSETTE

PARIS—Leonard, renowned hairdresser to Marie Antoinette, achieved great fame in the brilliant days of the Court of Versailles. But his achievement pales considerably before the world-wide reputation of Antoine who has held in his hands the heads of more queens and celebrities than his artistic predecessor ever dreamed of. Antoine was the father of the bob. Therefore, whenever there are rumors of a capillary revolution, Antoine's opinion has great weight.

"It has been affirmed that chic women, tired of the banality and incongruity of short hair with more feminine fashions, are letting their hair grow," Antoine said, on his recent return home from one of his American stunts.

"But we shall never see the old-time tresses sung by the poets," he predicted. "Modern life is too strenuous for a woman to be bothered with hair-pins and their attendant dishevelledness is not consistent with the modern's demand for a trim, sleek appearance."

"What I am advising my clients to do is to let their hair grow enough to manipulate it easily. Then they can have short hair for sports and a charming feminine coiffure the moment they don afternoon or evening gowns."

COIFFURES EXPRESS INDIVIDUALITY

"Soft waves and flat curls are the most appropriate and becoming afternoon and evening coiffures. They must be adapted, of course, to the individual type of face. When a woman comes to my studio, if she happens to be a society leader or a celebrity, I endeavor to create a coiffure for her alone, one that will either stress her beauty or her individuality or one that capitalizes her chief characteristics."

Antoine admires American women.

"American women are growing elegant and well-groomed," he declared. "But they have greater need to be than women in any other circumstances. The light in New York for example, is much harsher than in Paris and shows up small defects in complexion which would pass muster over here. The life there, too, is so strenuous that women must put forth greater effort for consistent good-grooming."

"All America is getting away from the idea of mass production," he said. "But the American woman leads in this. She is now seeking hard to express her personality and individuality."

Antoine is a born sculptor. He uses hair as his medium instead of clay. He credits old Roman and Greek sculptors for many of his best ideas for modern coiffures. Despite his immaculate clothes, his color ensembles and his femininely beautiful hands, Antoine is a very forcible figure and under his languid exterior you find a man with a keen business sense, a driving indefatigable energy and tremendous artistic ability. Quietly, gracefully and without ever raising his voice, he supervises his entire establishment, giving the final touch to a temple curl here, soothing an irate woman of 60 who really expected Antoine to make her look 35, studying a new celebrity's head to see what type of coiffure she needs to emphasize her personality.

"A hair dresser has a greater chance for artistic expression and a greater responsibility even than a couturier," Antoine expressed his seriousness in his work. "The couturier dresses a mannequin and leaves it to the hairdresser to give it a head and a soul and a personality. The coiffure, in a word, lends life to a gown. Hence the hairdresser or must necessarily be an artist. He must know at a glance what are the characteristics that make a face beautiful or interesting; his aim is to emphasize these so they will receive appreciation."

"A woman's hair is tremendously important to her personality. Arranged right, she is fascinating. Wrong, she merely takes her place as one more woman. Women now realize that. That is why so much more time and care is being put upon the coiffure."

some way out and then it came to me suddenly that if I said I was unconscious most of the time after —after I was kidnapped, and had not seen the face of the man who did it, the police wouldn't have any clues to work on, and could not make an arrest. You see, I couldn't identify anyone — could I?" she concluded, with piteous appeal.

Harry Blaine stared at the girl for a long moment. Then in an odd, husky voice he asked: "You really took a chance on killing yourself so that no one could be charged with your kidnapping?" "I couldn't think of any other way," Crystal protested. "I didn't want to hurt myself. I've always been an awful coward — And now — all that pain was wasted. I've got to face everyone — You'll tell the police for me, won't you, Harry? You won't let them — oh! I hadn't realized! I'll be arrested, won't I? Will they send me to prison, Harry? Oh-h-h!" The reporter seized her frantic hands, held them in a fierce grip.

"Do you think I'm going to let you ruin your life, Crystal?" he demanded in a voice harsh with emotion. "Listen to me! You were kidnapped. Do you understand? You leave the story to me. I'll get you out of this."

NEXT PARTNER in a new crime. (Copyright, 1929, NEA Service, Inc.)

"I don't know how you guessed it," Crystal sobbed. "But I did it for Pablo. I hadn't left a note for Faith and Bob, saying I was going away to work in some other city, and suddenly I had an awful picture of Bob's ferreting out the truth about Pablo, and putting the police on his trail. I couldn't bear that. I'd been reading in the papers about the Jefferson girl's being kidnapped, and the whole crazy plan came to me in a flash. I thought if Bob got a ransom letter the first thing Tuesday morning he wouldn't bother with Pablo any more. He'd know Pablo couldn't have done it, because he was on his way to Mexico — nowhere near Beamish."

"I see," Harry Blaine agreed, gravely.

"Go on — hate me!" Crystal cried hysterically. "But I did fix it so that Bob ran no risk of losing the $5000. But I know that doesn't count! I'm the wickedest girl in the world, and I'll pay for my sin with everlasting disgrace."

"Hush, Crystal!" the boy commanded almost sternly. "I want to think a minute."

Crystal stared at the reporter in an agony of suspense during the long minute of silence. In the light of the fire his grave young face looked oddly mature and wise, almost handsome. As if that mattered, Crystal reproached herself. But how thick and fine his light brown hair was. She wanted to touch it. . . . And how kind and steady and intelligent his grey eyes were. . . .

"Crystal!" The girl started and blushed, ashamed of how far her thoughts had strayed from her own wickedness. "How did you hurt yourself?"

Crystal's eyes fell, and she could feel the hot blood throb in her cheeks.

"For a long time I didn't realize that the police would be searching for my kidnappers, might arrest innocent men," she said. "When I did, I tried to make myself leave here and go back to Stanton and confess. But I didn't have the courage. I tried and tried to think of

Diet the menace of Hollywood

Stars wrecked seeking slimmness

PHOTOPLAY MAGAZINE recently revealed that many motion-picture stars ruin their health seeking slimmness. The motion-picture camera adds from 5 to 20 pounds to the appearance of a star's figure, so that many of these celebrities become victims of dieting.

One famous star died of tuberculosis brought on by weight reduction. Another ruined her career and was made an invalid by starvation. Still another resorted to quick-reducing medicines and is today virtually an invalid. Another star is mentioned who collapsed on a set after trying to lose 10 pounds.

One of the alarming dieting extremes indulged in by the stars, according to Photoplay, is eating no food at all for breakfast, and seriously limiting nourishing foods for both luncheon and dinner.

No person can be healthy without eating enough nourishing food daily and regularly. The tragic experience of motion-picture stars should be a warning to all women and girls to eat enough.

Modern health authorities insist on a variety of foods, including milk, vegetables, fruits and meats. It is a dieting error to suggest eliminating sugar from the diet, for sweetness is the perfect flavor that makes all of the healthful foods so delicious. Serve applesauce, grapefruit, dried and canned fruits and cereals for breakfast sweetened for enjoyment. Lessen the value of sweetening in the cooking of all vegetables for delicious flavors. Sweetening improves the taste and flavor of fruits and cereals. Sugar and flavoring make delicious milk-shakes and egg-nogs.

See that every member of your family eats enough. The best cooks are generous with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

SMARTER THAN EVER

A delightful new silhouette for the youthfully smart woman. It's new! It's versatile too, with slender lines, with molded waistline and double flared skirt, which ripples at each movement. The snug hypoxie is crossed by a narrow belt, fastened with buckle. The Vionet neckline has applied bands, with matching shoulder bows as its sole trimmings. Its lines are exclusive; found only in a Parisian frock. It's marvelous opportunity to have a shimmering transparent velvet in Autumn-tinted brown, in combination with matching shade of georgette crepe shot with metallic threads. The velvet appears in applied bands of Vionet neckline, shoulder bows and belt. It's a dress that one can wear so nicely for afternoons and informal evenings! It's outstandingly smart in Patou's slate blue sheer velvet self-trimmed with rhinestone buckle of belt as ornament. Tomato red georgette crepe is alluringly feminine. Black sheer velvet is stunning for the mature figure. Black lustre-crepe satin with applied neckbands, shoulder bows and hypoxie, made of the dull surface will give real service for general all-around wear. FLAPPER FANNY SAYS--

THE TINYMITES

By Hal Cochran

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

THE Tinymites still wondered why the Tree Man was so queer. "Oh, my," said Sooty. "I just wish you'd tell us what you're all about. We've never seen a man like you. How do you live? What do you do? The story of your life would be a thrill to us, no doubt."

The Tree Man smiled, and then sat down. Said he, "Now Tiny, that's why the woodmen come around with axes every year. They wish to chop them to the ground where later on the limbs are found, but all the trunks and bigger parts are dragged away from here."

"Of course you know that that is wrong, 'cause this is where the trees

SILVER FOX SCARF FOR EASTER WEAR

New York — With the approach of Easter, the most important sartorial season of the year, silver fox scarfs are in greater demand than ever before since every fashionable woman has a natural desire to own a genuine silver fox skin. In the next few weeks the furriers, shops, department stores and specialty shops will be crowded with women seeking scarfs of this fur. It is notable that a far finer quality of silver fox is obtainable in this country than in Europe.

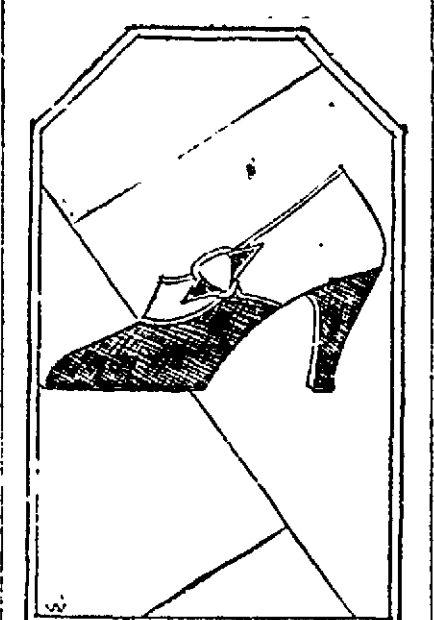

OXFORD BAGS ARE MODELS FOR PAJAMAS

The Oxford bags instead of the Jhodipe breeches are now the models for smart pajamas. The trousers of the new models are all wide at the bottom although somewhat snug about the hips and thighs. The majority of the new sets have coats which come just above the knee and fasten far over on the left side with a long reverse and buttons placed very low.

SOUTHERN TOUCH

Southerners have a way of tucking the last pinch of garlic, about the size of a pea, way inside roasts they are cooking. This gives an indefinable "different" taste that is delicious. More garlic would spoil the elusiveness of the appeal.

CAST OF STARS IN JUNIOR CLASS PLAY

High School Students Present Interesting Comedy at Chapel

Appleton high school juniors delighted a large audience with their presentation of "The Youngest," a three act comedy by Philip Barry, Thursday evening at Lawrence Memorial chapel. All members of the cast of the amusing comedy carried their roles with praiseworthy ease and finish.

The leading role of Richard Winslow, "The Youngest," the greatly misunderstood and abused youngster, was carried with skill and ability by Arthur Roemer. Jean Shannon played the party of Nancy Blake, the only one who really understands and sympathizes with much cleverness and charm. The role of the lovely and sweet mother of the Winslow family was portrayed very skillfully by Betty Meyer. Alfred Breitrick interpreted the role of Oliver, the overbearing oldest son, with great dignity and pompousness.

Other character parts were very pleasingly portrayed by Virginia Oaks, as "Mutt," the extremely modern youngest daughter; Lawrence Oosterhaus as Mark, the tormenting middle son; Lucille Joram as Augusta, the sophisticated and aristocratic eldest daughter; John Reeves as Alan Martin, her lawyer husband; and Edith Lenz as Katie the maid.

The high school orchestra under the direction of E. C. Moore played a number of selections between acts. The production was staged and directed by Miss Ruth McKenman, high school dramatic coach. Student play managers were Russell Wichman, financial manager; David Trettnin, advertising manager; William Foote, stage manager; and Lila Locksmith, property manager.

AIR MAIL SCHEDULE IS CHANGED FRIDAY

The new air mail schedule for the Fox river valley went into effect Friday. Southbound planes, instead of leaving Appleton at 4:05 each afternoon, will now leave at 4:50. Mail for dispatch on this plane must be in the postoffice by 4:15 each afternoon instead of at 3:30 under the old schedule. The new schedule gives Appleton residents 45 minutes more time to send mail by air. The change in schedule was made as the days grew longer allowing the company to extend its running time to the early evening hours.

Commission Meets

A regular meeting of the Appleton water commission was held Friday afternoon at the city hall. In addition to routine business, it was probable that the commission would decide to advertise for bids for lead piping.

A recommendation to the common council proposing an appropriation of $1,000 to finance health clinics now being conducted in Appleton schools probably will be prepared by the board of health at its meeting at 11 o'clock Saturday morning at the city hall. The proposal recently was made informally to the council by a representative of the county medical society, and the council suggested that a formal recommendation be prepared by the board of health.

The appropriation would go chiefly toward reimbursing physicians for the time they put in at the clinics. Heretofore they have been giving their time gratis. The medical society believes that a fee of $3 an hour to physicians for work at health clinics would be a fair remuneration.

Miss Jean Brunell has returned from a buying trip in Chicago.

"I am going through the Change of Life. At times I would cry for hours. I got tired of going to the doctor so I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Before I had taken the first bottle I began to get better. I have taken eight bottles now. I feel that it has saved my life, also doctor's bills. I work for a family of six, washing, cooking and do all my own work. People say I look like 25."—Mrs. Cora Calahan.

"Lydia E. Pinkham did for me what doctors failed to do. When the Change of Life began I was very poorly. Now at 55 I do all my own work, attend two dances a week and it is hard to make people believe I am over 40. I never see a woman in ill health but I advocate your medicine because I know its value. Every woman should take it, not just for a month or two but until they have passed the critical period."—Mrs. F. C. Helming.

"My Thirty Years at Sea"

by CAPTAIN GEORGE FRIED

Fried's struggle to get to sea and the ups and downs of his life as a seaman, brought a measure of reward in his first foreign voyage. There is education in travel, romance and fun in every port, he found, and here he gives a few reminiscences.

BY CAPT. GEORGE FRIED (Copyright, 1929, Associated Press) CHAPTER V

Sailors, I believe, are afforded wonderful opportunities to develop themselves mentally. Travel is educational. Aside from the routine duties aboard ship, sailors are permitted to go ashore in foreign ports. Shore leave is granted usually by the hour in the various departments, such as deck, engine and stewards' departments.

It is natural that every man wants to leave the ship as quickly as possible, but it is also obvious that a skeleton crew must be aboard at all times, so the various departments can function smoothly. Aboard a naval vessel or a tramp steamer efforts are made by the officers to divide the shore leave between men so that one group goes out first in one port and the next in the other, and so on.

In the American service, for instance aboard the America, the crew is also divided into groups, but in this case they are granted shore leave only in the two terminal ports, Bremerhaven and New York. When the America calls at Copenhagen, Southampton, Plymouth or Queenstown, it is impossible to allow any one to leave the liner, as the passengers' baggage and freight are taken on as quickly as possible and the vessel resumes her voyage.

Again in the case of the America and other trans-Atlantic liners, the members of the crew have large numbers of relatives and friends in those ports, and spend practically no time in sightseeing, unless it is their first trip. In the Navy, however, it is different. Most of the crew divide themselves into parties and the first two or three days are devoted to sightseeing. After that, if the ship remains longer, the men seek whatever diversion they can find.

The American sailor is not as bad as he is painted. Sightseeing trips develop his mentality and then I have seen sailors go to the ship's library to get volumes pertaining to the particular city or country the ship is headed for, so that they can acquaint themselves with the customs and ideas of the people they will visit.

It is true that they spend money. They often spend all that they have in a port. In recent years, however, through the cooperation of banks and savings institutions, these men lay aside part of their earnings for a squall.

I have been in many ports in foreign lands and I have always found enough entertainment and sightseeing trips to interest me. I cannot point to any port that left me more impressed than another, but I do remember a time that my ship touched one of the Azores islands. The vessel was anchored and we went ashore in a small boat. The heat was terrific. There was little to be seen except natives, thatched huts and tropical plants.

This was nothing new to me, but most of the fellows in our boat started on a promenade, going to this point and that, but not having been in the Navy very long myself, I decided, after a hasty survey, that under no conditions would I be left behind. I returned to the beach where our boat lay and sat down under a palm and waited patiently for the other fellows to return. They laughed at me, of course, but I had the satisfaction of being on hand when the boat was ready to pull off.

Sightseeing trips in various lands have been very valuable. I have had opportunities to study art, architecture and the customs of various people. Every sailor likes to read history, the chief reason probably being that he gets first hand knowledge. He sees monuments, places of historic interest, gets facts from natives that would have more of an impression upon him than the written word.

The historic data gleaned from books, however, fill the gaps that very often are not supplied by guides and natives. A sailor has every reason to enjoy life. The routine is varied by new places, new faces, and I remember when going ashore with groups of men we headed first for the best restaurant in town and ordered the finest meal from soup to nuts, irrespective of the cost. After a man has been under strict discipline aboard ship, it is only natural for him to relax when he gets ashore, but in all my experience, I cannot recall an incident in which a sailor did not behave himself as a gentleman in the ports we visited.

Fellows will sometimes get drunk and that is only natural. However, in the Navy patrols are sent from the ship to prevent their comrades from becoming disorderly, and if an occasion should arise the men are recalled. In this way fights are prevented among the men and with the townspeople, so the situation is always under control. In my experience, however, I never have witnessed any of our naval men create any disturbance that would necessitate drastic action by the local authorities.

We send out no patrols from the America for the simple reason that the two ports we touch where shore leave is granted are so large, and

RESTORE CAMPBELL TO OFFICE IN CAPITOL

Madison—(AP)—The final act in the capitol's farce-comedy—which has had a run of more than a year—will be played within the next two days. A. D. Campbell will be restored by F. N. Ritzer, superintendent of public property, to the office from which he was ousted by former Governor Zimmerman and C. B. Ballard, former superintendent of public property.

The moving will close a heated contest which went twice before the Dane county circuit court and once before the state supreme court in order to determine that the land commission's chief clerk was assigned to certain quarters by the commission which planned the state house. Two principals will be missing from the cast when the final act is played. They are Zimmerman and Ballard.

have so many diversified interests, that the several hundred men in the crew quickly disperse and are lost in the cities. They are then no different from the civilians.

There are occasions, however, when men miss the ship. If that happens on the other side the man is deported on another vessel of our fleet or is held until the arrival of the ship from which he is classified as a deserter. However, discipline usually keeps the crew intact. (Tomorrow: As A Junior Officer.)

STAGE And SCREEN

"THE SINGING FOOL"

"The Singing Fool," Al Jolson's newest film production, is a triumph of up-to-the-minute motion picture art. In the first place the Leslie S. Barrows story is written out of a deep familiarity with the life of the stage and of New York night clubs—and what is greater, an understanding of those qualities which make all humanity akin. Then, too, Byron Haskin has produced a marvel of photography, the glamor of the scenes of revelry being created with certainty and real magic. As for Jolson, he is revealed as an actor of unquestionable sincerity and amazing power of emotional expression. In many of his scenes his sorrows are tragic in their intensity, and exercise an unusual effect on the feelings of the audience. This is the more remarkable when one considers that Jolson has always been looked upon as a comedian, though to the more discerning there has invariably been the touch of pathos which made it evident that he would be able at some time to interpret the tragedies of life as well as the lighter moods. "The Singing Fool" gives Al Jolson that chance. His first picture, "The Jazz Singer," reached the source of tears as well as laughter, but the later play has wider appeal—touches and chords of life with a surer hand. The first play broke all records everywhere—the second will outclass the first—for it is done with more familiarity with the new medium of the screen—and with a deeper insight into humanity. "The Singing Fool" tells the story of a man who works in a New York night club in the dual capacity of waiter and singer of popular songs. He is madly infatuated with the featured entertainer of the club, and eventually makes her his wife, but stark tragedy comes into his household, and the distracted husband, who has by this time become part owner of a pretentious cabaret, is almost broken by the weight of his distress. The principal feminine roles of "The Singing Fool" are enacted by Betty Bronson and Josephine Dunn, other important members of the cast being Reed Howes, Arthur Housman, Edward Martindel, Robert Emmett O'Connor and David Lee, the attractive youngster who plays the son of Al. You will enjoy Al Jolson and "The Singing Fool" which opens a week's run at Brin's Appleton theatre starting with the midnight show Saturday night.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
When RUTH LESTER, secretary, made the dead body of her employer, "HANDSOME HARRY" BORDEN, sprawled on the floor beneath the window of his private office, she runs at once to the office of her fiancé, JACK HAYWARD. His office is just across the narrow aisle from Borden's.

Finding Jack out, Ruth searches for his pistol, which he had purchased at the same time he bought an identical weapon for her to keep in her desk. His gun is gone!

Petrified with fear, she recalls Jack's incriminating behavior of the past Saturday and his angry threat against Borden.

When Jack returns, he accompanies Ruth to Borden's suite and while he phones for the police, Ruth hurries to close the airshaft window in the private office, fearing Jack shot Borden across the airshaft. The window is already closed. Ruth tells DETECTIVE McMANN of Borden's two Saturday morning visitors: RITA DUBOIS, night club dancer and MRS. BORDEN, his wife and mother of his two children, who called for their monthly alimony check. Mrs. Borden comes in during the questioning and McMANN accuses her of the murder, but she denies it. Ruth tells McMANN of the pistol in her desk when he looks for it, it, too, is gone! Tiny footprints of a pigeon in dried blood on the window ledge and on the floor near the body indicate the window was open when Borden was shot. Ruth's fear for Jack grows but McMANN insinuates Ruth is the murderer of Borden. MOHANN, the elevator operator's testimony makes things look black for Ruth when McMANN suddenly asks whose office is that across the airshaft. When he learns it is Jack's, he asks the elevator operator what time on Saturday afternoon Jack returned to his office.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXV
Otto Plüger punched his shoulders and rammed his hands deeper into the pockets of his uniform. "I dunno—about two o'clock, I guess. I ain't keepin' tabs on them that's got a right to come and go."

"Isn't there a register record for Saturday afternoon, Coghlan?" McMANN demanded. "You require everyone to sign in and out, don't you?"

Coghlan shook his head. "Not until four o'clock Saturdays. Too many tenants coming and going before that."

"I can tell you almost to the minute when I returned and when I left the building," Jack Hayward settled the question matter-of-factly. "Miss Lester and I went to lunch at the Chester Hotel, and just before dessert was served I discovered that I had left the theater tickets on my desk. We were going to a matinee. I looked at my watch found that it was 10 minutes to two and walked rapidly from the Chester to the Starbridge Building—a distance of only two blocks. I didn't have to wait for the elevator, so it must have been not later than five or six minutes of two when I got off at the seventh floor. I went to my office and—"

"Just a minute!" McMANN interrupted. "I'd just a little bit rather have Otto's story before you have a chance to tell him what he remembers. And you might unclench that fist of yours, Hayward. I'm afraid still sprain your fingers and that would be too bad. Now, Otto, how long was Mr. Hayward in his office before he went back down again in your car?"

"I ain't saying he was in his office at all," Otto denied sullenly. "Oh!" McMANN pounced. "So you saw him head toward this wing of the building when he left the elevator, did you?"

Otto Plüger shrugged and slouched lower against the wall. "Naw! I ain't sayin' he was in his office or he wasn't in his office, because I didn't follow him—see? I tended to my business and that was runnin' my elevator."

"And right now, young man, your business is to answer my questions," McMANN retorted. "I may not give you a tip to keep your mouth shut, as Mr. Hayward evidently did, but I can give you a free pass to the jail if you don't open up and spill what you know."

"Mr. Hayward didn't give me no tip Saturday—naw, nor this mornin' neither! He tips us boys reg'lar the first of the month, like most of the other tenants do. . . . Aw, all right! I'm tellin' you, if you'll let me! It was about 10 minutes after I took him up before I took him down again, I guess, because I sent my kid brother, what was hangin' around in the lobby, over to the drug store across the street to get me a sup of coffee, right after I'd took Mr. Hayward up and I'd drunk it before he hung for me to take him down."

McMANN grinned crookedly as he made rapid notes of the boy's story. "You didn't have any other passenger during those 10 minutes, Otto?"

"Naw."

"And when Mr. Hayward left, did you notice anything peculiar about his behavior?" McMANN suggested.

Otto gloomed. "Naw."

Ruth could have kissed the sullen young towhead for his failure to mention a fact which might yet assume vast importance—that Jack Hayward had returned to his office empty-handed and left it with a heavy briefcase.

"Who else rode in your car between two and four o'clock Saturday?" McMANN prodded the unwilling witness.

"I ain't been taking no memory course," Otto Plüger shrugged. "But far as I remember, I didn't take down no passengers from the seventh floor after Mr. Hayward left."

Who were your passengers for the seventh floor after Miss Lester's and Mr. Hayward's second trip?"

Micky scratched his thatch of red hair. "First, I brought up Benny Smith, the kid that works here."

"Benny?" Ruth exclaimed. "Why, he left for the day at exactly one o'clock."

"Well, he come back," Micky grinned. "Said he'd forgot something. I took him back down three or four minutes later. . . . And say, I guess let Miss Lester out, all O. K. If the kid had found his boss dead he wouldn't a rode back down whistling, would he?"

Ruth smiled gratefully at the boy who was so obviously anxious to lift suspicion from her.

"If the boy came back for something he'd forgotten, it was undoubtedly in the outer office," McMANN pointed out. "And the door was closed between the two offices after Borden was killed, according to Miss Lester's own story of her discovery of the body. But you stick to your own story, Moran, and let the office boy tell his when he comes in—if he ever gets here."

McMANN added curtly. "Who else came to the seventh floor Saturday afternoon?"

"That lady I heard you call Mrs. Borden," Micky answered sullenly. "Gees! I didn't know she was married!" he added, brightening. "He sure didn't let it cramp his style none."

McMANN frowned. "Keep your opinions to yourself until they're called for, Moran! When did you bring Mrs. Borden up?"

Micky stuck out his lower jaw pug-naciously and seemed about to go in to a stubborn silence. Then, "I dunno! Pretty soon after I took Benny down, I guess. After half-past one, anyway."

"Did you notice her manner? Anything unusual?" McMANN rapped out. "I didn't pay no attention to her. She didn't mean nothing in my young life," Micky retorted. "She just got in the elevator and I took her up—that's all."

"And when she came down?" McMANN was having hard work to restrain his anger and impatience. "Was she upset? Crying? Pale?"

"Gees! I didn't give her a second look, after I seen it was the same lady I'd took up," Micky protested disgustedly. "I ain't got no time for dancin' her agin'."

McMANN looked as if he could cheerfully have eluted the impudent youngster over the head, but he limited the expression of his anger to a black scowl. "Anyone else?"

"Sure. A fraal that was here Saturday mornin', and two or three times before then," Micky answered sulkily. "Looked like a chorus girl."

"Rita Dubois!" Ruth cried. "I thought she was to meet Mr. Borden at the station!"

"Just a minute," McMANN silenced her peremptorily. "Describe the girl, Moran—hair, eyes, clothes, anything you can remember."

"Black hair, black eyes. Kinda tall and slinky, like a movie vamp," Micky obliged. "I didn't notice her clothes, 'cept she had on a swell fur coat with a real live white orchid pinned on the collar."

McMANN looked at Ruth, who nodded an eager confirmation of the girl's identity. "All right, Moran. When did you bring her up and what happened that you know of? Did you talk with her?"

"Not when I brought her up," Micky answered the last question first. "She was looking so sore, tapping her foot and acting so impatient, that I kept my mouth shut."

"When was this?" McMANN pounced.

"Gees, I dunno! 'Bout half an hour after Mrs. Borden left, I reckon. I ain't got no way of telling the time each party come up. I let her off at the seventh floor and then I went back down. While my car was down, the telephone in the booth started ringing and I answered it. The starter goes off at half-past one, and they wasn't anybody else but me down there."

"Yes? What of it?" McMANN demanded impatiently. "How long before Miss Dubois rang for the elevator?"

"At's what I don't know — not exactly," Micky admitted, flushing. "It—'at was my girl on the phone, and I made a date with her for Sunday, and — and kidded her along awhile, 'nen when I got back in my car."

cur the seventh floor red light was on."

"Five minutes? Seven minutes? Ten minutes?" McMANN suggested impatiently.

"Maybe 10 minutes, maybe more," Micky admitted, his flush deepening. "This Rita dame looks sore because I've kept her waitin', and I jolly her up a bit. I says to her, 'Sorry if I kept you waitin', Miss. I was makin' a date with my sweetie. I says, 'Nen she says, 'Well, be sure you don't stand her up, old dear. Nothing makes a girl more sore than to be stood up, she says, tapping her foot again, like she was sore as all get-out. An' I says, 'Gees! Did Borden stand up a swell fraal like you?' An' she grins a little at that an' cracks right back, 'I'll say he did! and how!'"

"What else?" McMANN demanded.

"Gees, ain't at enough for one trip?" Micky grinned. "She got off and beat it out of the elevator, like she was in a hurry. She run into the telephone booth and that's the last I seen of her, 'cause I had a call from the fourth floor then—or maybe it was the fifth. Naw, it was the fourth. Old man Cohen—whole-sale shoes."

"Any other passengers for the seventh floor Saturday afternoon?" McMANN demanded impatiently.

"Naw, not a soul," Micky answered promptly. "I thought Borden had gone down by the other elevator, for some reason or other. Gees! He musta been dead already, and his sweetie thought he'd stood her up. Gees! She musta stood there poundin' on the door—"

"That'll do, Moran," the detective shut him short. "You and Otto can get back on your jobs, but don't leave the building till I give you permission, understand?"

When the door had closed upon the elevator boys, McMANN faced Jack Hayward, his eyes narrowed to glinting gray slits. "Well, how about it, Hayward? I suppose you're going to tell me it took you 10 minutes to find those conveniently forgotten theatre tickets."

Before Jack could answer Patrolman Biggers appeared, with the information that the men from the morgue had arrived to to remove the body of the murdered man.

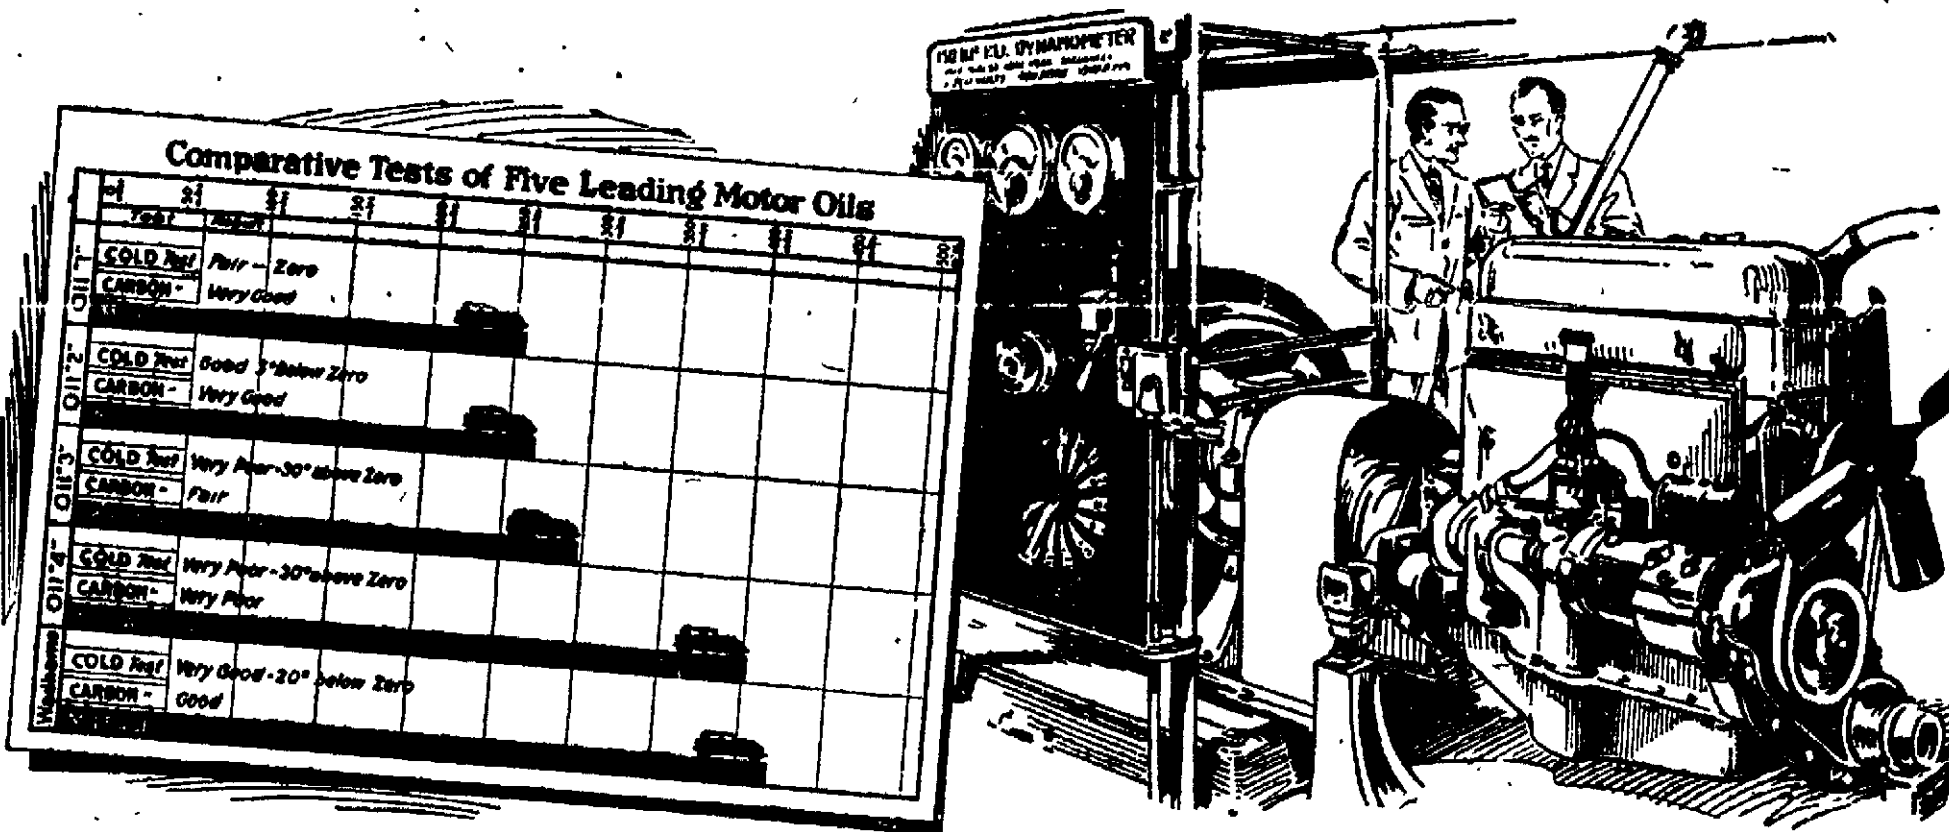

"Just a minute, Biggers. Hold 'em back until I get Mrs. Borden out of the way. I'll put her in Covey's charge down the hall till I need her."

Some of Ruth's hatred of the detective evaporated as she witnessed his gentleness with the widow whom he had, a few minutes before tried to bully into confessing that she had killed her husband. But when the body had been removed on a stretcher, and McMANN was free to devote his entire attention to Jack Hayward, fear for the man she loved flamed her hatred of McMANN into a high, hot blaze.

Can Jack Hayward explain away those 10 minutes? Newspaper reporters appear in the next chapter.

Engineers revealed this Dollar Saving Test of Oil Value—

How Many Miles Per Quart?

NOW you can buy oil on facts. No longer are you dependent on faith, fancies or claims. Wadhams now unconditionally offers the most vital fact in motor car lubrication today — "Most Miles Per Quart."

Wadhams offers a new-day motor oil that squarely meets the most critical requirements of advanced automotive engineering. An oil of extraordinary richness, with stamina to withstand excessive motor heat and higher driving speeds.

Independent engineers, fact-seeking, absolutely impartial, proved the mileage shown on the chart above.

They purchased Wadhams Improved Tempered Motor Oil and four other famous, high grade brands on the open market.

With new motors, and the modern scientific equipment of a great university, they tested each of these oils for consumption — for miles per quart. The tests extended over weeks, covered the equivalent of thousands of miles. Every fact stated in Wadhams Advertising will gladly be supported by original laboratory reports.

Wadhams gave 158 miles MORE on a single quart than one of the oils—151 miles MORE than another — 122 miles MORE than the third.

Even this does not tell all the facts. Other tests revealed that the oil that most closely approached Wadhams in mileage, was highest of all in trouble-making carbon residue, the poorest in cold test.

Wadhams not only gives most miles per quart, but its freedom from heavy carbon residue holds carbon troubles to a minimum.

Improved Tempered disclosed the lowest cold test in this entire group of oils. Wadhams is a year-around oil, as safe in frigid winter days as in hottest summer weather.

For Most Miles per Quart, use Wadhams. For economy, and safe lubrication under every condition, use Wadhams.

High School Quint Invades West Green Bay Tonight

Ripon College Cagers Have Won Little 4 Title

MUST BEAT BAYS TO RETAIN HOLD ON SECOND PLACE

Orange Now Tied With Oshkosh; Sawdust City Team Meets East

VALLEY CONFERENCE
	W. L. Pct.
Manitowoc	6 1 .833
Appleton	5 2 .715
Oshkosh	5 2 .715
East Green Bay	4 3 .577
West Green Bay	3 4 .429
Sawdust City	3 4 .429
Marquette	3 4 .429
Sheboygan	0 8 .000

FRIDAY'S GAMES
Appleton at West Green Bay.
Oshkosh at East Green Bay.
Fond du Lac at Manitowoc.
Marquette at Sheboygan.

A fight to stay among the leaders is carded for Appleton high school Friday night when the Shieldsmen invade West Green Bay to meet the Purple and White in its new gymnasium. The high is now tied with Oshkosh for second place each with two losses, and a defeat for the Orange will relegate it down among the mediocre teams, providing of course that Oshkosh can beat East Green Bay.

From advance dope Appleton should romp to a comparatively easy win over West but whether that is possible under present conditions is a question. The interest and enthusiasm that carried the Shieldsmen along so far this season—thoughts of a title now is gone and the boys may skid far down the ladder by the time they reach the northern city.

However, there is one ray of hope for the Orange as far as the outcome of Friday's game is concerned—Benny Rafath probably will be back at center. The big youngster has recovered from the illness which kept him out of the East Green Bay game and now is taring to get underway again. His presence at center will mean much to the Appleton offense.

Berg and Mike Gochbauer will get the assignment as forwards and with the worry of winning a title off their minds they can step out and shoot just as often as the law allows. Gochbauer also will be required to look after a few of the more dangerous members of the West basket team.

Bobby Kunitz and Jake Schaefer will cavort at guards and if they have as much success as they had against the Bays here, they'll be in for a highly pleasing evening. The West siders garnered only 7 points on their appearance in the armory three weeks ago.

Coach Leland Delforge's second team also is taking heart in the invasion of West Green Bay and will play the West reserves. The Orange copped the first game by a one point margin the score coming on a free throw after active play had ceased.

The game which holds most interest in the conference will be played at Manitowoc where the Shipmakers will try to repeat. Fond du Lac, a quiet winner, been booted around most of the season but which now is coming into its own. The Shipmakers, despite the fact they seem winners of the conference title aren't letting overconfidence affect their play and have been working hard for the invaders.

East Green Bay will play host to the remnants of Coach Schneider's championship Oshkosh team at East Green Bay. The Sawdust city youngsters may be revamped and remodeled but if they display half the fight they showed against Manitowoc last week, Schneider may return home with the Red Men's scalp hanging in his belt.

CRIPPLED SWIMMER SETS NEW RECORDS

Chicago—(P)—Physicians and swimming instructors once said she couldn't do it, but Jane Fauntz, 19-year old Chicago mermaid, did it just the same.

Gaining speed and grace with every year, Miss Fauntz, who once was injured so severely in an automobile accident that she was told she could never swim again, Thursday night won two national amateur women's swimming titles at the national meet at the Lake Shore Athletic club.

She outclassed a fancy field to win the national women's low board diving title and after a few minutes rest, she came back to capture the 100-yard breast stroke championship. It was not only her greatest aquatic triumph, but the first time in the history of the women's national championship meet that a diving champion has won the breast stroke event.

The strong New York Women's Swimming Association team regained its national 440-yard relay title, swimming the distance in 4:28.1. W. A. C. teams finished second and third.

Because of Miss Fauntz's performance, the I. W. A. C. Friday threatened the New York Swimming Association in the race for team honors. The New York team has a total of 23 points, while the I. W. A. C. has 13. Other teams are out of the running.

HOLD MORE HEAVY BOUTS IN FLORIDA

Miami City Commission Signs With Garden for Five More Fights

Miami Fla.,—(P)—The turnstiles will collect at least five more winters underneath the palm trees, by the terms of a new agreement between the Miami City commission and the Madison Square Garden Corporation, calling for an annual heavyweight feature bout to be staged here over the period including 1930-34.

Negotiations, carried on by William F. Carey for the Garden Corporation with the Miami City Commission, were completed Thursday and contracts and details Friday put in the hands of lawyers.

The agreement means further fulfillment of the dreams of Tex Rickard, who not only laid the groundwork for the Sharkey-Stribling battle, but revealed before his death definite plans to establish a permanent winter fight headquarters in this section. The high hopes Rickard had for the championship prospects of Young Stribling, the Southern brawler, have blasted, at least for the time being, but Tex's business project seems due for realization.

Jack Dempsey's name not mentioned in the announcement of the agreement, but it is believed the former champion will be induced to support the forthcoming annual southern fistic features.

Miami Beach, scene of the Sharkey-Stribling fight, offered no counter bid for future bouts, as a consequence of local objections to either retaining the Flamingo Park arena or building another in that city next winter. The city of Miami has agreed to transplant the pine octagon, contributing $10,000 toward the cost of removal and rebuilding.

BRUSHING UP SPORTS... By Laufer

WALTER HAGEN is going to England again this season with two objects in view. One is to see that his Ryder Cup team of pros defeat the British squad when they meet in the annual matches and the other is to grab off the British open championship for the fourth time, if possible.

And looking at those two events at this time, it seems a rather swell bet that Mr. Hagen will realize both ambitions.

Hagen captains the American pros again this year through the courtesy of Ted Diegel, whose victory in the P. G. A. championship entitled him to the captainship. But he stepped aside with the suggestion that Hagen, because of previous experience, be given the job and his suggestion was followed.

The American team includes Hagen, Diegel, Gene Sarazen, Johnny Farrell, Horton Smith and other American-born pros, and is a formidable one any way you scrutinize it.

They should win the Ryder match and one of them should grab through with the championship if Hagen doesn't.

Hagen has won three British opens. Bobby Jones is the only other American who has won three. He has won every important title he is eligible for in his career. He has been playing a sweet game of golf this winter, and he should be right on his game by the time he invades England. The British, like the Americans, respect the Hagen's golfing ability and fighting spirit and know he must be reckoned with in any meet he enters. It doesn't pay to scoff at his standing, at any stage of the meet, for he has come from behind many times to win. He likes it when it is toughest.

The dope seems that the American will win the Ryder Cup match and one of the team, with Hagen a favorite, will grab off the open championship.

Statistics Give Badgers Edge Over Michigan Five

WISCONSIN'S tall basketball team is fast bearing down toward its first share in a Western Conference championship since 1924, when the Badgers defeated Chicago, 30-11 in the final game, and tied for the title with the Maroons and Illinois by taking eight of 12 Big Ten games.

Incidentally, if the Badgers win the undisputed championship today, it will be their first undivided one since 1918 when they won 9 of 12 conference contests.

The figures are all for a Wisconsin championship, with a tie for the title at the worst. Michigan, the only team in the running, faces two games, the first Saturday night with Ohio State and the second Monday night with Wisconsin, either of which will remove them from the race, provided Wisconsin defeats the last place University of Chicago five in the season finale at Madison March 9.

If the Badgers down Michigan Monday night, although the Wolves might beat Ohio, Wisconsin would finish the season with only two defeats should Chicago surprise and win, while the Maize and Blue would have been beaten three times.

Should Michigan defeat Wisconsin and Ohio State their record would be 10 won and two lost, while Wisconsin would then have to take Chicago into camp to equal the same record.

Further statistics give Wisconsin the Michigan tilt.

The Badgers have averaged 30.1 points a game for their 20 contests to 23.7 for Michigan, which gives Wisconsin a 6-point offensive advantage. Defensively, Michigan has held opponents to a 21.5-point average a game, while Wisconsin has a 23.3 average, which makes the Maize and Blue 1.8 points stronger defensively.

The difference in advantage gives Wisconsin a 1.6 point edge, and even as Dr. McFarwell, the dynamic Madison coach likes to put it, with a four point advantage for the home floor, Michigan remains 5 points weaker.

NEVER QUITS FOOTBALL
Ernie Nevers has changed his mind. A year ago, he said he would quit baseball and stick to football coaching. Just a few days ago he resigned his job as assistant coach at Stanford and announced he would devote all his time to baseball.

RIVER FALLS FIVE BEATS SUPERIOR PEDS

River Falls—(P)—A basket in the last minute of play gave River Falls a 27 to 26 victory over Superior here Thursday night, and the teachers' conference lead.

The game was nip and tuck. Superior overcame six points in the last half to make the score 26 to 25. At the half the score was 12 to 12.

Dimareo was Superior's star. G. Manion starred for the Falls team.

VIKES' OPPONENTS CAN'T BE INJURED BY DEFEAT FRIDAY

Freshman and Y. M. C. A. Teams to Play Preliminary Game

ALTHOUGH they haven't a chance to topple the haughty Redmen from the top rung of the Little Four basketball conference, Lawrence college Vikings have hopes to dividing the season with the invaders Friday night at armory G. The Redmen were victors in the first game between the two schools, a sharp rally at the end putting the game on ice after the Vikes had trailed 16 to 13.

Ripon has lost but one game in the Little Four and as all other teams have lost at least three they have no chance of being dropped out of first place. The Ripon five also copped the title last season.

Featuring the invaders lineup is Halverson and Red Martin, the leading scorers in the Wisconsin conference and runners up in the Midwest. Friday's game affects the standings of both team in the Midwest and Little Four conferences.

The Viking lineup will be the same as that which made a good showing against Carleton here a week ago. Biggers and Rasmussen will be at forwards and if they continue the work they started against the Carls Vikings fans will get a big thrill.

Ken Laird showed he can shoot baskets and still play a pretty good defensive game at center, against Carroll the other evening, and big things are expected of the tall fellow against Ripon. He has the edge in the jump and if he can count a couple times will rank himself with any center that ever played for the Vikes.

It's the Viking defense that will have a job Friday, however. The invaders boast a weaving offense that has romped all over other teams in the conference and with Halverson and Martin potting shots from most anywhere, indications are there'll be a real battle in progress before the evening is over. Capt. Slavic, St. Mitchell and Fischl will be the Vike guards.

A preliminary game between the Ripon and Lawrence frosh was carded for the evening but the Ripon five won't be here. Instead the Appleton Y. M. C. A. team will meet the yearlings.

M'LARNIN, GLICK TO BATTLE IN NEW YORK

New York—(P)—Jimmy McLarnin, smiling battler from the Pacific coast, enters his bout with Joe Glick at Madison Square Garden Friday night a nine to five favorite to record his third victory over the Williamsburg pants presser.

McLarnin and Glick first met on the coast several years ago as featherweights and Jimmy won the decision. They renewed their feud in the Garden six weeks ago and McLarnin again carried off the verdict after a torrid struggle.

Their third meeting again is for ten rounds at 135 pounds. Glick probably will be outweighed by three or four pounds.

Another intercollegiate wrestling meet has been carded for Lawrence college matmen, according to Coach H. Rasmussen, and on Thursday afternoon, March 7, Beloit will invade Alexander gymnasium to tug and grunt with Vike hopefuls. The meet is the fourth this season for the Vikings, others having been with the University of Wisconsin, Green Bay Y. M. C. A. and Oshkosh State Teachers college.

Despite the fact the Vikes have won but one meet so far this season they have hopes of coming through against the downstater. Their last bouts were with Oshkosh teachers and the men have kept in continual training in preparation for the coming meet. An admission fee of 50 cents will be charged for the fights, according to Coach Rasmussen.

Moaning Saxophones Keep Waners From Baseball

BY JOHN B. FOSTER
Special leased Wire
Copyright 1929

PAUL ROBLES—Paul Waner, youthful expert with a baseball bat has had no correspondence in recent weeks with Pittsburgh club that is to say he has had no correspondence of a purely literary character. The club sends contracts to him and his brother Lloyd. The contracts are returned to the club unsigned.

This has been going on like shut-the-cock-and-battler with no argument or whys or wherefores to even it.

"It is all the fault of the devilish saxophone," said Sam Dreyfuss, club treasurer. "Ever since he learned to play the instrument and Lloyd also learned to make it mean, the boys have been trying to combine two arts, music and baseball. It can't be done. The saxophone cannot be combined with anything except an overgrown bass horn and a jazz band." The Pittsburgh folks think Paul has been associating with stage people so long that he has acquired some of their habits about contracts. No actor plays for less than $10,000 a year, but not all actors draw sand-wich money.

Paul is responsible for Lloyd. Whatever he does he takes care of that younger brother with a fatherly oversight that is good to see. If Paul says "No" Lloyd will say "No", too. But Lloyd will grieve even more than Paul. Lloyd loves to think of beating "em out to first. He will sit and talk saxophone to you by the hour and end the conversation with: "I beat that one by an eyelash but they all count in the batting averages, don't they? If Lloyd should not play ball in 1929 he would perish of nostalgia.

Paul will have to think of that. Paul likes to look out for Lloyd. Frankly if the Pittsburgh team doesn't have these players the pennant chances of the Pirates will not seem like Jupiter on a clear night in California. On the other hand if the Waner boys do not play baseball this year they will not be so badly wanted in 1930. Their work will fall off. Both are the type of player who must keep going to make the most of the assets with which nature has endowed them.

Neither is apt to play ball as long as Cobb played, and neither is a slugger. When these good batters who do not slug begin to wilt they fade like the morning glory and by noon they are wilted.

At camp the folks think the boys are listening to bad outside advice. Maybe so. Whenever there is a strike for salary there usually has been someone to tell the striker that he is being underpaid, that he is making the world go around, and so on. But the truth is that the world doesn't stop even if the player does.

A red-hot sun flashed out of a clear sky and the Pirates practiced pitching and hitting and shagged all day long on Tuesday. It was a real workout, the degree of ache in their legs when they were through. This sunshine has its effect upon Pie Traynor, who is here and looking as fit as the bass string of a double bass viol. He played shortstop all day and his boss, Donie Bush, conceded right now that Pie is as good a shortstop as there is, in the game, and maybe he's right. If Pie plays short, and it looks this early as if that is to be the program, Pittsburgh will see a shortstop who can cover more ground than any man who has filled that position for Pittsburgh since Wagner.

One thing about Wagner is not remembered by many. That was his reach. John McGraw once said Wagner could reach clear around third base, double a lap back, stand on his head and kill base hits for any team that played against him.

In time it will be ascertained that while Traynor may not have the Wagner reach he has one all of his own and when he gets his arm rubbed up for the season he is apt to do as many dare-devil stunts at short as he ever did at third.

"We need a shortstop and a third baseman," said the Pirate boss, "but in my opinion we need a shortstop like blazes."

Hence it would seem that Traynor is about to blaze.

SPORTS QUESTION BOX

If you have some question to ask about Baseball, Football, Boxing or any other amateur or professional sport—If you want a rule interpreted—If you want to know anything about a play or player—Write to John B. Foster, on Baseball, Lawrence Perry, on Amateur Sports, and Fair Play, on boxing and other professional sports. 314 World Building, New York. If you want a personal reply enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Otherwise your question will be answered in this column. Copyright 1929 by Pub. Co. Post-Pub. Co.

Question—Which is it better to be an outfielder or a pitcher?
Answer—The answer is that it is best to be the best that you can on a ball field. If one is a natural pitcher it is as well to cultivate that art.

Question—Is spring football practice essential to a college football team?
Answer—In view of the short preliminary seasons which meet colleges have spring practice serves the purpose at least of letting coaches have a line on new material.

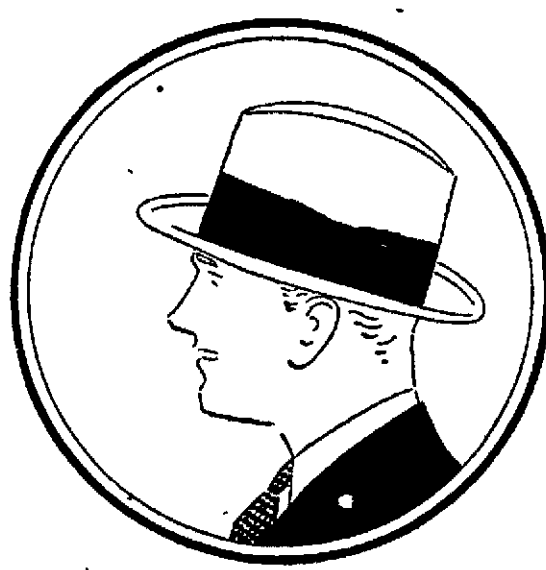

Question—If a runner purposely runs into a basemen should the runner be declared out for interference?
Answer—He should. The umpire is the judge of deliberate interference. It is not a play that can be called an ordinary out by touching a base or touching a runner. The umpire must decide upon the fault of the runner.

ROLL MIXED DOUBLES ON ARCADE ALLEYS

A mixed doubles bowling tournament will be rolled Sunday evening on Arcade alleys, according to announcement Friday. The meet will begin at 8 o'clock and is open to all bowlers in the city.

Philadelphia—Midget Wolgast, Philadelphia, outpointed Romiller Parra, Chile (8).

OUT OF THE PAST

This is a different and younger when this was taken, but he had been with the Senators long enough to be rated as one of the outstanding hurlers of baseball even at that date. His last ball was at its fastest then. The season after this was taken, in 1913, Johnson won 36 games and lost only seven.

DOC WRIGHT HANDLES

ILLINOIS CAGE MEET

Warren "Doc" Wright former instructor in Appleton high school who now is attending Northwestern university, has been named on the official Illinois state list of accredited basketball and football officials, according to word received here. He is the third man to join the association. Wright will handle an Illinois district tournament for high schools at Pontiac, Ill., soon. Twelve teams have been entered in the tournament. He also has been signed to handle a full season's football games in the Southern Wisconsin conference, better known as the Big Six and boasting teams from Racine, Madison, Kenosha and other Wisconsin cities.

EXPECT 6 U. W. PROFS TO SEEK TAX REFUND

Madison—(P)—About six additional University of Wisconsin professors are expected to request refund of income taxes paid on book royalties, according to H. R. Briggs, county assessor of incomes. The claims of six professors already have been refused by the Dane county board of income tax review and appeal is to be taken to the state tax commission.

Mr. Briggs is requesting all who are to apply for refund of incomes taxes paid on book royalties to file their claims as soon as possible in order that the board of review may take action on all requests at a meeting to be held soon.

Kimberly—Without the services of Eddie Kotal the S. O. Chevrolets, Appleton, were defeated here Thursday night by the Kimberly club squad 42-22. The Appleton team seemed lost without "Eddie" and just could not locate the basket. The game, however, was fast and interesting. During the first quarter the losers managed to drop in a field goal and a couple of free throws to tie the 11 points made by the K. C. squad. The second period netted the invaders only one basket while the Papermakers raised their score to 22.

The Chevrolets played a better scoring game during the last half. To 20 points made by the Clubsters they scored 16.

Gossens and Courchane evened up with 10 points apiece for the winners and "Pete" Koll and Williams were close seconds with 8 points each. They also played good defensive ball. Scheurle played a winning game for the losers and scored 10 of their 22 points. Pete Briese followed with 3 field goals and a gift shot. The S. O.'s played a good passing game but the boys were just "off" when it came to dropping that ball into the basket.

WORLD WILL HEAR HERB TAKE OATH AT INAUGURATION

Broadcasting Program Will Include Parade — Many Stations to Broadcast

BY C. E. BUTTERFIELD

New York — (P)—Herbert Hoover will become President of the United States within the hearing of the world.

Microphones by the dozens will be at numerous vantage points in Washington March 4, to pick up every word of the event. From them will radiate sound in the form of electrical energy to be carried by wire to broadcast stations scattered across America to Mexico and from coast to coast.

Besides, there will be hooked in numerous short wave transmitters, companions of stations on the broadcast band. These will send the signals around the world so that any American, no matter his location, may have available the story of the 1929 inauguration.

Two chains, the National Broadcasting system and the Columbia Broadcasting system, have made elaborate plans to get every detail of the induction into office of the new President. For the first time, microphones will be placed in the senate chamber, where Senator Charles Curtis is to take the oath as vice president.

The first important part of the day's event will be the inauguration of the vice president in the senate chamber between 11 and 12 o'clock. Eastern time, to be followed by that of the President on the capitol steps. The parade and its band then will

The NBC is using 30 microphones. Special soundproof booths have been provided for many of them, while others will be portable.

A staff of announcers headed by Graham McNamee and Phillips Carlin will include Milton J. Cross, John B. Daniel and William S. Lynch. Each has been given special assignments. The proceedings in the senate chamber will be described by David Lawrence, political writer, where a special booth to fit the surroundings has been installed.

Included in the features to be described will be an aerial display by army and navy aviators.

The Columbia stations, numbering 43 and augmented by "specials," will start the broadcast at 10 a. m. Opening from the New York studios of WABC, when Louis A. ## Good Fishing Trip Is Outlined By Sportsman

BY B. A. CLAFLIN

Now that the fishermen are awakening from their long winter's sleep, letters are beginning to come almost daily asking me to put the writers wise to some good fishing. This is growing more difficult each year, but there is good sport to be had if one knows where to go for it.

A man who I know is an expert angler from the tone of his letter, writes me from St. Louis. He wants to come up when the bass season is open for a week or longer. Prefers bass fishing, but also wishes a filing at the muskies, pike or what have you.

I am outlining a trip for him which should prove interesting to my readers in Wisconsin, and so I will review it in this article. It is one which I have taken myself and therefore have first-hand knowledge of.

I am showing him the route to Hayward to begin with. Here he can visit Teal lake and take all the walleyes he wants off the reefs, and they run up to 10 pounds in weight. Tiring of this he can run over to Round lake and cast for muskies with every assurance of hooking a fine specimen. From there he can drive but 22 miles to Jim Granger's place on the West Fork of the Chippewa river. The river here widens into what is called Moose lake and, in addition to muskies, has northern pike in profusion.

We took some wallpapers casting along the fringe of weeds that margins the river as we rowed along up to the first falls. Arriving there, we landed several fine walleyed pike in the fast water below the falls, using wobblers and plugs of different kinds.

And then there is Grindstone lake, Upper and Lower Twin lakes, and a nouncers, who will include Ralph Wentworth and Ted Hussing. Frederic William Wile, political writer and radio speaker, will have charge of the senate chamber and other parts of the day's broadcast. Talks are to be made at intervals.

At night both chains will broadcast music of the charity ball, beginning at 11 o'clock. In addition to the sound radio, C. Francis Jenkins, television expert, is planning to transmit moving pictures of the inauguration on short waves. These will go on the air as early as possible in the evening.

host of others, all of which are excellent fishing waters. A peculiarity of this region is that the supply of game fish seems to hold up to what it was years ago. This cannot be said of many of our lakes in the eastern part of the state.

When my correspondent gets ready for the bass, he can drive northwest from Hayward to the St. Croix river. There he will enjoy what is without any doubt the best Small Mouth bass fishing to be had in the country. The river can be

SCIATICA

YOU have undoubtedly used Bayer Aspirin for headaches and know how promptly and completely these tablets relieve the pain. They are even more wonderful in the relief of such serious suffering as sciatica; lumbago; rheumatism and those aches and pains that are bone deep. They don't affect the heart, and they do dispel the pain. There is nothing quite like genuine Bayer Aspirin, but see that you get the genuine. It has Bayer on the box and inside are proven directions for many important uses it is well to know.

ASPIRIN

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monocetacidester of Salicylicacid waded in many places like a trout stream.

For tackle he can use a bait casting rod if he prefers, or if he takes my tip, and wants real thrills, he will use a fly rod and surface flies. This, to my way of thinking, is the cream of all angling. The bass run up to four pounds, and the current of the river is strong enough to help the old warriors put up a real fight.

All in all, the St. Croix river is a fisherman's paradise. I know of no waters in the state that can compare with it for bass fishing.

FORMER HOOVER AIDE INVITED TO CEREMONY

Racine — (P)—A former British army man who found himself in the peace-time army of the American relief administration at the close of the World war and assumed the task of feeding 2,000,000 starving Russians is going to Washington Saturday for a reunion with his former "chief"—The next president of the United States. With a personal invitation in his pocket from President-Elect Herbert Hoover under whom he served in feeding the destitute and hungry of war-torn Europe, Denis Murphy, who now is a proprietor of a Racine garage and an American citizen, will leave Friday for Washington to see the climax of the career of his former superior when he is sworn in as the new chief executive of the nation.

How To Play Bridge

"The Auction Player unfamiliar with Contract is apt to be troubled by the big difference between Auction and Contract values for tricks, undertricks, premiums, slams and rubbers, etc. The vulnerability feature of Contract is also apt to be confusing.

Four of a Minor (a bid rarely made from a love score because three is generally sufficient to indicate the holding) announces ten practically sure tricks and asks for a raise if the partner have any possible trick whatever. Four Minor bids are so rarely made and so obvious in their nature that it is not necessary to illustrate them; but illustrations of sound four-Majors bids follow:

WICHMANN CO. BUYS CONN FUNERAL HOME

The Wichmann Furniture company has purchased the Conn Funeral home on 228 N. Oneida-st and will take over the property Friday. It was announced Thursday morning by George E. Johnson of the furniture company.

W. P. Saecker, who was associated with Howard Conn, former proprietor of the funeral home, will continue as funeral director for the Wichmann Funeral home. Other funeral directors will be E. J. Smith, Joseph Loessel and Mr. Johnson.

The interior of the building is to be remodeled and redecorated, and new fixtures and furnishings will be installed, according to Mr. Johnson.

Mr. and Mrs. Conn will leave soon for California to make their home.

SENATE WONDER IF SMOKE IS LUXURY

Madison—(P)—The Wisconsin Senate raises the question whether cigars are luxuries more than silk stockings and silk underwear are.

Sen. H. B. Daggett, Milwaukee, made the issue in speaking against Sen. Howard Tensdale's tax bill. Tensdale has called smoking a luxury.

"I consider smoking a necessity," Sen. Daggett said. "If you are going to consider cigars a luxury, why not include silk stockings and 'toddies'?"

broadcasting station has little knowledge of the number of its listeners and much less ability to judge their ill will or good will. There is no daily return of rise and fall in circulation. If some one could invent a method of accurate touch, it might solve our problems, for I am convinced that some stations are broadcasting not to receiving sets but only to the ether.

"The greatest public interest must be the deciding factor. I presume that few will dissent as to the correctness of this principle, for all will agree that public good must overbalance private desire; but its acceptance leads to important and far-reaching practical effects as to which there may not be the same unanimity, but from which, nevertheless, there is no logical escape."

Mr. Hoover is a believer in the private company has distinguished from government-owned system of communication. In all international conferences he has emphasized the fact that he believes it accords with the American conception. The president-elect recognizes that with television coming and with the improvement in radiophone service from nation to nation the development of the short wave and the many other advances that have been made and will be made by science, radio is no longer a national but an international question. He has followed immediately the proceeding of international radio conferences and is conscious of the dangers that he ahead for the United States if this country does not observe carefully its communication possibilities in competition with other nations.

It may come to pass that under Mr. Hoover's administration the problem of emerging communication companies will become a live matter of discussion. The merger in Great Britain of communication systems with government aid has caused some uneasiness in official quarters here, but under the present law the bringing about of combinations in the telegraph and telephone and radio field have been made difficult if not altogether impossible.

Communication is to Mr. Hoover not only vital from the viewpoint of recreation, but also as an essential instrumentality of business and commerce.

(Tomorrow's dispatch will deal with reorganization of government departments.)

LEGION TO PROVE IT FAVORS CHILD CODE

Madison—(P)—American Legion support of the proposed Wisconsin Children's code will be demonstrated by four meetings planned for the weekend, according to Aubrey Williams, secretary of the Wisconsin social welfare conference.

Meetings in Superior, Eau Claire, Janesville and LaCrosse are to feature a legion and a conference speaker, Mr. Williams said.

At Superior Saturday, Mr. Williams will speak for the conference, while Reginald Haley, state commander, will speak for the legion. The same day, a meeting is scheduled for Janesville with Prof. J. L. Gillin of the University of Wisconsin department of sociology as conference speaker, and Austin Peterson, Milwaukee, state legion adjutant, as the service organization's representative.

Mr. Williams, with James Burns, Milwaukee, state service officer of the legion, will address a meeting at Eau Claire Sunday, Merton Locke, LaCrosse, district commander of the legion, and an unnamed conference speaker are to talk at a Sunday session in LaCrosse.

After all, most husbands are like children

MANY a man owes his daily fitness, his success, to the wife who sees that "he takes good care of himself." She watches that he gets enough sleep, takes enough time to eat. She acts as family physician with every meal she serves. And often as not, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is her trusted ally.

For this healthful cereal has been adopted by countless women as the surest, easiest way to insure plenty of daily roughage, lacking in so many foods.

They know how important roughage is. In safeguarding their families from constipation they are responsible for their own happier homes.

Constipation is the bane of thousands. It attacks health. Ruins youth. Saps energy. Too often it brings serious disease. And yet it is easy to prevent. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed.

Why ALL-BRAN is so effective

Bulk or roughage relieves constipation naturally. ALL-BRAN furnishes bulk in generous quantity because it is 100% bran. This bulk absorbs moisture and distributes it through the digestive system. Gently distending the intestines—exercising them—sweeping out wastes and poisons. In a part-bran product the amount of bulk is seldom sufficient to completely perform this work. That is why doctors recommend ALL-BRAN. Because they know that it is 100% bran and 100% effective.

Different from unnatural pills

ALL-BRAN works as nature works. How much better than habit-forming drugs whose dose must be constantly increased — and which sometimes injure the system.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is an inviting cereal to eat with milk or cream. Delicious with fruits or honey added. Sprinkle it into soups too. Use it in cooking—recipes on package. Mix it with other cereals. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal. If you will serve it in some form regularly, you will surely protect your family from dread constipation.

ALL-BRAN is sold by all grocers. Served at hotels, cafeterias. On diners. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Guaranteed! Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is sold with this definite guarantee: Eat it according to directions. If it does not relieve constipation safely, we will refund the purchase price.

This Week's Simplified Recipe—BAKED ALASKA!

Cake Mixing Time, Less Than 4 Minutes!

After making this tempting Baked Alaska, Mrs. Donald Brewer said: "I never realized that 'Kitchen-tested' flour could make such a difference."

Another Adventure in "Kitchen-tested" Baking

Now Baked Alaska has been simplified. Of the first 427 women trying this recipe, 424 succeeded perfectly. Two who failed blamed a mistake in mixing; the third her oven. Try it.

By the development of an utterly new type of flour—Gold Medal "Kitchen-tested" Flour—baking has been simplified amazingly for housewives. And the cause of most baking disappointments banished. "Kitchen-tested" means that every batch of this flour has been tested in an oven just like yours, before it goes to you. Tested for uniformity of result with home recipes.

That means Gold Medal Flour always acts the same way EVERY TIME with your recipes.

Ask your grocer for GOLD MEDAL "Kitchen-tested" Flour. For perfect results, be sure and get that brand of flour before you try this recipe.

Cut out along this line and save—

RECIPE . . . Baked Alaska

6 egg yolks, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup GOLD MEDAL "KITCHEN-TESTED" FLOUR, 2 tsp. baking powder, ¼ tsp. salt, ½ cup boiling water, 1 tsp. lemon juice.

METHOD: 1. Beat egg yolks with rotary beater until thick and lemon colored. 2. Add sugar gradually, beating all the while. 3. Sift flour once before measuring. 4. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. 5. Add boiling water, flour mixture and lemon juice to egg mixture and beat well, still using rotary beater. 6. Place batter in ungreased pan and bake. The spring form cake pan in which the bottom has been inverted to form a depression in center of cake is correct size, or regular Mary Ann Cake pan can be used. TIME: Bake 40 minutes. TEMPERATURE: 350° F., moderate oven. SIZE OF PAN: One 10-inch spring form pan, or a Mary Ann Cake Pan, not a tube center pan. AMOUNT: 12 to 16 servings. Meringue and Filling: 6 egg whites, 1 cup sugar, 2 quarts strawberry ice cream. METHOD: 1. When cake has cooled and it is time to serve dessert, make meringue by beating egg whites very stiff and gradually beating in sugar. 2. Place cake on paper on board and fill depression in cake with ice cream. 3. Cover ice cream and sides of cake with thick icing of the meringue. Be sure ice cream is thoroughly covered so that heat of oven will not melt it. 4. Place in oven for few minutes until meringue is delicately browned. 5. Remove from oven, slip cake from board onto serving platter and serve at once. TIME: Bake from 3 to 5 minutes. TEMPERATURE: 500° F., very hot oven. NOTE: You can make one-half this recipe, enough to serve 6 to 8 persons by making one-half the cake mixture in a bread loaf pan. When cooled place 1 quart of brick ice cream on top of loaf cake. The cake must extend out a little beyond the ice cream on all sides. Cover with one-half the meringue mixture and bake in same way.

WASHBURN CROSBY COMPANY, Minneapolis, Minnesota

This and other delightful "Kitchen-tested" recipes are given every Wednesday and Friday in the Gold Medal Radio Cooking School. You are invited to listen in.

Book Of Knowledge

Carlo Borromeo

The plague lasted four months and Cardinal Borromeo continually moved among the stricken people, helping to care for them medically and spiritually. His exertions were fearless and unwearied, and how he escaped the affliction was regarded among his people as a miracle.

By NEA. Through Special Permission of the Publishers of The Book of Knowledge, Copyright, 1923-26.

Meantime, a number of the rich who had hidden away in a beautiful villa, where they feasted and enjoyed themselves, were victims of the fever.

Kneeling one day before the altar in his cathedral Cardinal Borromeo offered himself, as Moses had, as a sacrifice for his people.

Cardinal Borromeo was untouched by the plague, but his untiring labor for his flock caused his death before he reached the age of fifty. His body was placed in the many-spired cathedral of Milan.

KAUKAUNA-LITTLE CHUTE-KIMBERLY

TOWNSSHOP DEPARTMENT
CLOSES, PUTS 45
MEN OUT OF WORK

Some Employees Are Transferred to Chicago, Antigo, and Other Cities

Kaukauna—Forty-five men are without jobs here as a result of the closing of the repair department of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad shops Friday. About fifteen others have been transferred. A few tinmiths have been transferred to Chicago and a number of helpers were sent to Antigo. Several of the old employees were added to the workers in the round house.

A notice was posted here two months ago stating that the entire backshop was to close permanently. Feb. 1. Requests of committees formed to grant a one month stay was granted by the railroad officials. About 160 men were employed in the backshop department.

A committee of local men interviewed Gov. W. Kohler, and a hearing with Fred Sargeant, president of the railroad company was arranged last week in Chicago. The president stated that the repair shop would have to close permanently on March 1 for economical reasons. He said a survey would be made of the car department and that it would continue to operate until the survey was completed.

The closing of the locomotive repair department affects the machinists, boilermakers and blacksmiths. Thus rumors that the shops would be closed, which have been heard in Kaukauna for almost 20 years, have materialized to a certain degree.

VOCATION SCHOOL

Activity of Kaukauna Institution Warrants Inspection, He Reports

Gunn, Jr., assistant director, and R. L. Welch, of the department of trades and industry of the Wisconsin State Board of Vocational Education.

It is the first time that a member of the Federal board has visited Kaukauna, and Mr. Rakestraw commented on the fine results in the trade extension classes. He said he was surprised to hear that there were 11 such classes organized here. He visited the classes in session on Tuesday.

He said it was most unusual to have so many trade classes in a city the size of Kaukauna, and that the Federal board did not usually stop at cities with a population of less than 25,000, but due to the activity at the local school he deemed it advisable to pay a visit here. The Federal government reimburses the local vocational school board for one half of the expense incurred in maintaining the trade extension classes, under the provision of the Smith-Hughes Act.

STATE MARKET GROUP

Special to Post-Crescent
Hilbert—Raymond Mieke, 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Mieke, near Dundee, has the distinction of being the youngest contestant winning the annual cash prize offered by the Wisconsin Department of Markets. He carried off first honors with his essay, "How Radio Benefits the Farmer," in competition with nearly three thousand contestants.

When Raymond heard the contest announcement over the station WLBL he informed his parents that he would try for the first prize award. His father smiled and replied that if Ray would win this prize he would give him the best cow in the farm, whereupon Ray took up his father's promise.

Dr. Holtz and family attended the funeral of Mrs. Holtz at Chilton Wednesday.

Sheriff Dieckhoff of Chilton was in town Tuesday on his tour through the county, serving notice to jurors for the circuit court for the March term. Two men from Hilbert are on the list. They are E. F. Roddatz and William Hiltmann. Mr. Dieckhoff also called on his mother, Mrs. Mary Dieckhoff, before returning home.

Mr. and Mrs. Math Fuchs moved their household goods into the Neumann residence Monday on Main-st. They formerly occupied the Bauer residence.

Mrs. Joseph Juckem and daughter Odella of Chilton arrived Wednesday to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Dieckhoff until Friday.

Miss Viola York of Pembine, returned to her home Wednesday after spending a week with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Eder. Highway 57 probably will be opened completely by Friday. It is said that this highway is the worst in Calumet-co. On some places the snow is 12 feet deep and so hard the snow plow is the only equipment that could move it. The plow is doing splendid work.

The next meeting of the sewing club will be at the home of Mrs. Mike Voimer.

Mrs. Kenneth Corbett is reported on the sick list.

Miss Lorraine Jantz, who is employed at Bonduel, returned to her duties Tuesday after spending a few days here with her parents.

Mrs. Jake Groves is spending a few days at Chicago. She attended the funeral of a sister-in-law, Mrs. Hansen, nee Maggie Groves, which was held Monday.

Mrs. F. E. Dehne entertained the Five Hundred club Tuesday evening, and honors were awarded to Mrs. George Wolff and Mrs. Fred Boesclager.

IF RHEUMATIC
BEGIN ON SALTS

Says We Must Keep Feet Dry, Avoid Exposure, Eat No Sweets

Stay off the damp ground, avoid exposure, keep feet dry, eat no sweets of any kind for a while, drink lots of water and above all take a spoonful of Jnd Salts occasionally to help keep down uric and toxic acids.

Rheumatism is caused by poison toxins, called acids, which are generated in the bowels and absorbed in to the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine.

The pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed thus forcing the kidneys to do a double work; they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this poison, which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain, called rheumatism.

At the first intimation of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jnd Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is helpful to neutralize acidity, remove body waste also to stimulate the kidneys, thus helping to rid the blood of these rheumatic poisons.

Jnd Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism.

SECRET SERVICE RANKS UNCHANGED AS PRESIDENTS GO

Protectors of Chief Executive Hold Office Ordinarily for Long Time

By RICHARD L. TURNER (Associated Press Staff Writer)
Washington — (AP)—While the inauguration of a new president invariably is accompanied by numerous changes in the personnel of high government officialdom, there is one arm of the great federal machine which is unaffected by the vicissitudes of political fortune.
That is the group of alert young men in whose keeping is the personal safety of the president and his family—the White House secret service. Especially trained and selected for this great responsibility, the secret service agents watch over president after president, leaving usually only as a matter of personal preference or in the very rare event that the chief executive asks that some particular agent be removed.
There never is a moment, day or night, when they are not close by. When the president is at work in the executive offices, they are stationed at the door. Should he leave his desk for a moment's stroll in the corridor, one of them is at his elbow. When he seeks exercise in walking, they are just a pace behind. While he sleeps, the ever-vigilant secret service men are on guard at the door of his bedroom.
On the infrequent occasions that a vacancy develops, W. H. Moran, chief of the United States secret service, looks over his army of field workers and selects the man to be assigned to the White House. Physical condition, intelligence and appearance are the deciding factors.
At the White House, Richard L. Jervis is in direct supervision assisted by Col. E. W. Starling. Jervis has guarded five presidents, coming to Washington 22 years ago in the administration of President Roosevelt. Starling has been in the secret service 16 years and was assigned to the White House during the Wilson administration after holding a field post at Birmingham, Ala.
An important part of his duties has been as advance man for presidential trips. When the chief executive has planned a journey away from Washington, a week to a fortnight previous has found Starling on the scene of the visit, making arrangements for transportation, searching out quarters for members of the party and, above all, making plans for guarding the executive's safety.
Starling is an expert on firearms and an enthusiastic hunter. It was he who introduced President Coolidge to his recently cultivated hobby of shooting. He interested him first of all in clay pigeon shooting during the President's vacation in Wisconsin last summer and later accompanied him on a hunt for quail in Virginia and was at the President's side when the latter hunted for pheasants, wild turkey and deer on the islands off the Georgia coast.
One of Starling's favorite stories has to do with one of the presidential hunting trips. Always after the President fired, he cleaned the gun and personally inspected the weapon, in order to avoid any possible accident.
The President watched him while he "broke" the shotgun and carefully squinted through the barrels.
"Find a hole there, colonel?" the President asked.

WORK ON NEW GROCERY PROGRESSING RAPIDLY

Construction work on the new Richard Tesch Grocery store being erected at 202 E. Wisconsin-ave is well underway and it is expected it will be open for business within the next two or three weeks, according to Mr. Tesch. New fixtures probably will be installed next week.

The Inaugural Pageant

FROM WASHINGTON TO HOOVER

WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT, 1909-13

By Alexander R. George

Washington — (AP)—A surprise blizzard virtually ruined the Taft inauguration, blinding snow and howling gales lashing spectators and participants in the parade. Washington was filled with disappointed people and trains loaded with inaugural visitors were stalled miles from the city.

Telegraph and telephone lines were down and the capital was isolated from the rest of the country. A visitor said the spectators' stands looked like enormous snowdrifts and that he found a great crowd of southerners in the union station who seemed bewildered by the blizzard. An army of workmen battled to keep a path clear down Pennsylvania-ave where decorations presented a forlorn appearance as they dropped under the weight of the wet snow.

The weather man had sent word, that the day would be fair and the temperature moderate but the "flare-back" of a storm upset his predictions. The weather the day before had been suggestive of late April. Fog had been followed by heavy showers and rising temperature, lightning played about the city in the afternoon and at night a light snow began to fall.

The blizzard was on full blast as President-elect Taft sat with President Roosevelt at the breakfast table in the White House. "Even the elements protest," said Taft. Roosevelt laughed and replied:

"I always knew there would be a blizzard right up to the end of my term."

Escorted by Troop A of Cleveland, "the million dollar black horse troop," the president-elect rode with President Roosevelt and Senators Lodge and Knox from the White House to the Capitol in a carriage drawn by four bay horses. The snow beat fiercely against the faces of the crowd who had assembled to witness the departure.

Although the carriage was closed, spectators quickly recognized the occupants and cheered both enthusiastically. The eight carriages and one automobile carrying the full presidential party looked more like a funeral procession in Alaska than the usual inaugural pageant. Colonel Roosevelt wore big galoshes which reached almost to his knee.

Despite the adverse weather, 16,000 regulars, 8,000 guardsmen and a number of civilian organizations were given 3,300 salutes as the great fleet of American battleships anchored in Hampton Roads after its return from a world encircling cruise of 14 months. "Taft's Own," the Philippine constabulary band, came 13,000 miles to honor their former governor.

In a colorful column against the white background of snow were the fox hunters, a contingent of Virginia and Maryland riders, clad in pink coats and black caps, and astride handsome satin-coated horses. Gov. Charles E. Hughes of New York and Gov. Charles S. Deneen of "Uncle Joe Cannon's state" rode thoroughbreds.

Gen. O. D. Howard of Vermont, 80 years old, was the marshal of the veterans' division. His mount was the famous Kentucky thoroughbred, King, as single footer and commander of the harness world. General Howard put the bridle reins in his teeth as he adjusted his blue army coat.

As the presidential carriage passed the Willard hotel, a delegation of Yale men gave a big cheer for Bill Taft of the class of '78. The inaugural ceremony was held indoors for the first time in 75 years. Senate Lodge, looking out over the great expansion of snow-covered stands and seats on the Capitol plaza, said: "This is a calamity."

President Taft took the oath of office in the senate chamber. When he concluded his inaugural address he sat down beside Vice-President Sherman. E-President Roosevelt, taking Senator Knox's arm, started to leave the chamber. He paused before he reached the doors, however, and mounting the steps of the rostrum approached President Taft who advanced to meet him.

The two men grasped each other by the shoulders and embraced each other, Roosevelt saying something by which President Taft nodded an expression of appreciation. Roosevelt then disappeared through the door. Within an hour, he and Mrs. Roosevelt were speeding on a train to Oyster Bay to make preparations for a big game hunting trip to Africa.

Daily Lenten Thought

BY WM. E. GILBOY, D. D.

If man finds God in his own heart why need he look beyond himself? Because what man finds in himself inevitably leads him toward something larger and better. Man as a spiritual being is an incurable idealist. All that is good within him reaches out toward something good in the whole universe and in the completeness of life of which he himself is but a part.

For this reason, in spite of what often seems the vagueness of man's faith in God, and of man's conceptions of God, atheism and infidelity can never hold sway for long, or give to man any goal of hope and help and uplift. The seeming effectiveness of movements of unbelief is almost always associated with the attack upon false ideas of God, and wrong notions of religion. Errors are destroyed, but real faith only reasserts itself with new power despite all the attacks upon it.

For this reason, also, God will still be man's ideal. The standard of perfection is inseparable from human thought and aspiration. So, in all that is best in man Jesus saw the reflection of the divine, and if he taught men to find God in their own souls he brought

CHIEF ISSUES ANOTHER WARNING ON LICENSES

Another warning was issued this week by Police Chief George T. Prim to all motorists.

"Auto licenses for 1929 must have been applied for by March 15 under state law," the chief said. "I am issuing this warning in plenty of time so that all car owners can get their applications off. Unless they are able to give positive proof of having sent for their licenses on March 15 they will be taken into court."

The chief said that he was going to issue an order on March 15 to have all his officers issue a summons to those drivers whose cars do not display a new license plate. If the driver cannot then show that he has applied for his license or give a good reason why he has not done so, he will be taken into court.
